7 Heavily Armed Fugitives Sought in D. C.

Doolittle's Merger Talk Protested By Forrestal

Army-Navy Battle Mounts as Issue Is Taken Directly To Sec. Patterson

By Mary Spargo
Post Staff Writer.

The Secretary of the Navy protested directly to the Secretary of War yesterday over statements made by Lieut. Gen. James H. Doolittle, as the Army-Navy battle over unification of the armed forces flared with new heat.

Doolittle had told the Senate Military Affairs Committee yesterday that "our B-29 boys are probably resting uneasily in their graves" becauseof naval commanders' claims about the part their forces played in the Pacific victory.

The famed leader of the first bombing of Tokyo bluntly termed some Navy arguments "hypocrisy," and referred to others as "ridiculous."

Letter Given to Press

On the heels of the Doolittle testimony, Navy Secretary James V. Forrestal immediately dispatched a protest to Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, and informed him he was making the letter available to the press.

Forrestal warned against letting an "honest difference over principle degenerate into an exchange of personalities."

"As civilian head of the Naval Service," Forrestal declared, "I should not let charges against high ranking naval officers of hypocrisy or partisanship to the point of callousness go unnoticed."

Says Record Speaks for Itself

The Navy Air-Sea rescue record speaks for itself of the Navy's concern for B-29 crews, the Navy Secretary said.

"And I question especially," he added sharply, "whether death in any particular line of duty—and the resultant grief at home—should be appealed to in order to advance any individual point of view."

Doolittle, in his prepared statement, had told the committee:

"I have seen the contention made that you can have effective unity of command in the field in wartime without having unity of control in peacetime.

"I believe this is wrong, and I believe that, even worse, it is hypocrisy.

No Unity If Not at Home

"When a war is over the commands in theaters of operations are, of course, liquidated and nothing remains except the home front organization. If there is no unity there, there is no unity at all."

The reference to the crews of B-29s came under questioning about assertions which Admiral Chester Nimitz and Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher had previously made to the committee.

Doolittle also paid his respects to

Pearl Harbor 'Stand Devilish, Brewster Says

By the Associated Press

A Republican Senator accused White House advisers yesterday of using "devilish ingenuity" in an asserted effort to restrict information reaching Pearl Harbor investigators from Army and Navy files.

Senator Brewster (R., Me.) threw the accusation in a shouted Senate argument as the Pearl Harbor row boiled over again on both sides of the Capitol.

The Senate dispute arose over a supplemental memorandum issued yesterday by President Truman, requesting government department heads to authorize their employes to volunteer information to any members of the Senate-House committee investigating the December 7, 1941, disaster.

The memorandum concluded with the notation that "This does not include any files or written materials."

Basis of Republican Objection

The Democratic contention is that only the committee as such, or its counsel, should have access to the files. The Republican argument is that individual members should be permitted to see the records, and that the Truman directive yesterday would prevent Government officials from even discussing information in the files with individual committee members.

Brewster told his colleagues he thought Mr. Truman had depended on his White House advisers and Cabinet members in signing the new order. The Maine Senator

Attlee Flying To Capital Atom Parley

London Newspapers Intimate Possible Participation in Talks by Stalin

London, Nov. 9 (AP).—Prime Minister Attlee flew tonight toward Washington for atomic energy talks which he hoped would help achieve a world "safe for the common man" and banish fear of the atomic bomb.

Speaking at a Lord Mayor's luncheon, Attlee said he would discuss world affairs with President Truman and Canadian Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King "in the light, the terrible light, of the discovery of atomic energy."

"I go to the consideration of these high matters, not downcast or depressed," he said, "but in a spirit of high endeavor to try to serve my fellow men."

Speculate on Stalin's Presence

London newspapers speculated that Premier Stalin might join Truman and Attlee for Big Three conferences in Washington, but a spokesman at No. 10 Downing st. said "as far as we know here, there is nothing in that report at all." Moscow dispatches showed that Russia was keenly interested in the British-American-Canadian atomic energy talks.

Attlee left an airport near London at 6:30 p. m. (1:30 p. m., EST) in a Skymaster plane, followed by another plane carrying Sir John Anderson, chairman of the British Atomic Energy Committee. The flight to Washington via Newfoundland was expected to take 19½ hours.

In Washington, congressional leaders arranged for Attlee to address a joint session of the House and Senate at 12:30 p. m., EST, Tuesday.

Wants Safety for Common Man

"I want a world which will be safe for the common man," Attlee declared at the luncheon.

"London learned its lesson. Only by the world learning the same lesson can civilization endure. The foundation of world order must be laid in the hearts of men.

"I go to America . . . with just this in view. I want to exchange ideas with the President and the Prime Minister of Canada to see how best we can lift from the ordinary man and woman this specter of fear that haunts him today.

"I want to consider with them how best our common ideals of peace, freedom, tolerance and economic prosperity for all people can be realized."

Turning to foreign policy, Attlee said, "I think that you will wish me to express to President Truman our high approval of his recent speech, and our cordial acceptance of the 12 points which he laid down as the guiding principles to American policy.

"In particular, we welcome the assurance of the continued active

Three Leaders to Hear Top Atomic Scientists

By International News Service

President Truman and Prime Ministers Attlee and Mackenzie King will listen to top atomic scientists, probably from both Great Britain and the United States, before starting their momentous discussions this weekend.

The White House announced yesterday that scientific advisers on the explosive topic of nuclear energy will be called in by the three leaders for technical information prior to the talks Sunday in isolation aboard the Presidential yacht.

Identities of the scientists were not disclosed in the White House announcement, although Prime Minister Attlee told Commons that at least one leading British scientist, Prof. J. D. Cockroft, among others working in "North America," will be called in by President Truman.

Security Policy Sole Topic

The announcement by the White House stressed that the discussions by the three leaders will be devoted entirely to policy on future security in the atomic era.

The British Prime Minister was expected to arrive in Washington early this afternoon. The time of his arrival was subject to weather

Admiral Halsey To Retire Nov. 22

Philadelphia, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—Admiral William F. Halsey, jr., famed leader of the United States Third Fleet, announced today that he would retire from the Navy November 22. Halsey made the disclosure during a press conference in connection with his appearance here in a Victory Bond rally.

Ready for Java Showdown

British Reinforcements Take New Positions at Soerabaja

Batavia, Nov. 9 (AP).—British reinforcements took up new positions in tension-gripped Soerabaja tonight, and prepared for a showdown battle if the Indonesians refuse to obey an ultimatum to surrender their arms by 6 a. m. tomorrow.

British planes showered leaflets on the naval base, outlining the exact procedure for unconditional surrender by the Indonesians. A Dutch monitor at Soerabaja, however, said natioalist leaders were exhorting their followers by radio to battle to the last.

A general uprising threatened all through the rich Island of Java, led by an army of 100,000 Indonesians determined to resist restoration of Dutch colonial rule.

British military authorities admitted frankly the situation at Soerabaja was critical. They announced that clashes to date in the naval base had caused 303 British and Indian casualties, including 31 killed, 189 missing and 83 wounded.

They brought in new forces of the Fifth Indian Division yesterday, and deployed their troops into key positions. The British were spread around a part of the perimeter of Soerabaja, in the port area, and occupied a seaplane base west of the city's airfield.

Beside instructing Indonesians on how to surrender their arms, Lieut. Gen. Sir Philip Christison, Allied commander in the Dutch East Indies, issued a proclamation declaring the British would "tolerate no resistance" in seeking out and punishing those responsible for the slaying of Brig. A. W. F. Mallaby about 10 days ago.

Christison asserted that the current British action was not "an attack on the liberties of the Indonesian people" nor an attempt to settle the political future of Indonesia by force.

He said the situation in Soerabaja differed from the rest of Java and "doesn't concern the rest of Indonesia."

"The British have no quarrel with the people of Indonesia," Christison added, stressing that it was the "extremists" in Soerabaja who would be punished.

He promised that "all law-abiding citizens will have an opportunity of disassociating themselves from the lawlessness of the extrem-

Chinese Reds Defy Entry of Chiang Troops

Cancel Peace Talk; To Oppose Advance Into Manchuria

Chungking, Nov. 9 (AP).—Chinese Communists issued a blunt "stay-out" warning today to Nationalist troops waiting ominously by the thousands on Manchuria's southern border, along the historic Great Wall near American-guarded Chinwangtao.

The Reds canceled abruptly a scheduled afternoon peace talk in Chungking and said they would oppose entry of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's troops into Manchuria or any other "liberated areas."

The government, they charged, is using 49 armies aggregating 127 divisions—nearly one million men—for "this civil war," plus 350,000 puppet troops. Forty-nine of the government divisions are supplied wholly or partly with American equipment, they asserted.

Facing Strong Forces

Chiang's troops, pouring from American transports in the American-secured North China port of Chinwangtao, are facing "strong Communist forces" along the Great Wall 10 miles to the north—ready for the main round of China's undeclared war, Associated Press Correspondent Richard Bergholz reported from the scene.

Semiofficial sources in Chungking confirmed his report, conceding that the government likely will make its major drive to Manchuria by moving eastward from the Chinwangtoa area along the Peiping-Mukden (Manchuria) railroad. Nationalists hope to reach Manchuria this month to replace withdrawing Russian occupation forces.

A Chinese Red spokesman asserted that many airplanes were massed at Peiping, ready to carry government troops to Changchun, Manchurian capital. He inferred that Reds had no way of blocking airborne movements, but added that if any passage of ground forces through liberated areas were attempted it would instantly be challenged.

Railroad Town Included

He included the railroad town of Peitaiho, near Chinwangtao, in the liberated areas from which, he said,

Graves Found Of U. S. Fliers Killed by Japs

14 Executed 2 Days Before Enemy Made Surrender Offer

Tokyo, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—Weed-covered graves, evidence found in tiny cement cells, and the accounts of prisoners have revealed that 14 American B-29 fliers were executed by the Japanese only two days before Japan offered to surrender, it was announced today.

Gen. Walter Krueger's Sixth Army headquarters announced the finding of 14 graves, marked crudely with planks, in the Sandayama Military Cemetery at Osaka In only one instance was the last name and rank found on the plank.

Internees at the prison where the men were held from shortly after their superfortress was shot down on the night of June 5-6 until they were killed on or about August 8, said they were tortured daily by Japanese secret police.

Nine of the 14 have been identified tentatively.

The latest addition to the list of Japanese atrocities recalled that three of the fliers who participated in the first United States air raid on Japan, in 1942, were executed by the Japanese in China.

An unnamed Korean wrote Sixth Army headquarters that 18 crew members of superfortresses were brought to the prison the day after the June 5-6 raid on Osaka. This launched the Sixth Army investigation.

Officers said two died of wounds a few days after their capture. Two others were liberated by American occupation forces and returned to the United States.

The remaining 14 were kept in cement-walled cells, prisoners reported. They were forced to kneel for long periods with bamboo poles behind their knees, shutting off the circulation in their legs and causing excruciating pain. Daily they were marched to secret police headquarters several blocks away. Fellow-prisoners said they showed signs of mistreatment when they came back.

Death Verdict Commuted

London, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—The death sentence passed on Gen. Georges Tsolakolou, Greek premier under German occupation, has been commuted to life imprisonment, an exchange telegraph dispatch from Athens said today.

Camp Peary Prisoners Seize Guns, Steal Auto

Headed Northward; Roads Blockaded; All in Party Navy Court-Martial Cases

Seven Navy prisoners—armed with two sub-machine guns and three rifles—escaped from Camp Peary, near Williamsburg, Va., at 9 a. m. yesterday.

They were reported headed in a northerly direction, perhaps to Richmond or Washington.

Fifth Naval District headquarters at Norfolk Va., said there was a possibility that an eighth man had escaped in the break, but that it would not be known definitely until a complete check of Camp Peary's prison rolls had been made.

Within an hour the fugitives held up a civilian near Camp Peary and took his money and his car.

Extreme Caution Advised

Washington police received a teletype message from Williamsburg police to be on the lookout for the men and to use "extreme caution" in arresting them.

The Navy announced that all of the escaped prisoners are general court-martial cases. All are 22 years of age or younger.

They are William M. Hagan of Parkville, Md.; Edward O. Byus of Woodbine, Md.; George D. Ledger of DuBois, Pa.; Byron E. Thompson of Soldier, Iowa; Theodore E. Hall of Rochester, Mich.; Justin R. Harrington of Cochecton Center, N. Y., and Charles H. Wright of Nashville, Tenn.

Marine Guards Overpowered

The prisoners, the Navy said, overpowered two Marine guards in making their break. The men had been taken from the compound in a work detail. They robbed the guards of their submachine guns and stripped one of his uniform.

When they fled the camp, one of the prisoners was wearing the Marine uniform. The others wore gray prisoner garb.

A short while later, the men stopped Norman R. Ring of Detroit, Mich., at gunpoint on Route 168 near Camp Peary.

Ring, who is associated with the R. L. Polk Publishing Co. of Detroit, said that one armed man in Navy uniform halted him. As he stopped, he related, the man leveled a rifle at his head while the other men scampered out of hiding from nearby woods.

Ordered Into Woods

Ring said the men had two submachine guns and at least three rifles. He said that after taking his cash, $38, they ordered him to go into the woods and turn his back while they drove off in his car.

Ring's car was a black 1936 Chevrolet bearing a Michigan license plate numbered AE7477.

Virginia State police, the FBI and the Navy Shore Patrol joined in the intensive search for the fugitives. Road blocks were set up on all highways in that part of the State.

When the prisoners left Ring, they drove off in the direction of Richmond, which is 40 miles northwest of Williamsburg.

One of the Marine guards overpowered by the prisoners told camp officers that he had overheard them discussing the holdup to get a car. He said they planned to start abandoning the car singly after reaching Toana, Va., a small town about 10 miles north of Williamsburg.

Appeal Postpones Execution Date

The date that Monroe D. Neely, 35, Negro, must die in the electric chair for the first-degree murder in 1943 of Policeman Charles R. Johnston was postponed yesterday in District Court from November 15 to December 14.

Neely requested the delay pending action on his petition to the Supreme Court for a review of the denial by the lower courts of a lunacy hearing.

Self-Rationing Of Milk Likely By Next Week

Washington dairies expect some form of unofficial milk rationing to be in operation by the beginning of next week, unless the present milk supply, 25 per cent under normal, greatly improves.

All dealers are agreed, however, that Washington children will not suffer from the shortage.

They intend cutting the wholesale deliveries first. As a second step, milkmen will urge customers without children to accept less than their normal orders until supplies increase.

No New Customers

The situation varies with individual dairies, but childless customers will probably be asked to shift from a 3-quart to 2-quart milk buying schedule.

Most dairies have in effect now the self-rationing policy of accepting no increases in orders or new customers.

Although the Department of Agriculture says it "has no plans

Stockholders Back Higgins' Plant Closing

New Orleans, Nov. 9 (AP).—Stockholders voted today to liquidate Higgins Industries, Inc., backing up the decision of President Andrew J. Higgins to close the boat-building plants because of labor difficulties.

The announcement stated that the stockholders had voted unanimously "to place the company and all of its subsidiaries in voluntary liquidation out of court."

It stated that Higgins and Morris Gottesmann, secretary-treasurer of the firm, had been named co-liquidators.

"The liquidation of the company's affairs becomes effective immediately," the announcement said.

"The liquidators will, if it is possible for them to do so, complete all contracts on hand."

Higgins closed his three boat-building plants November 1.

The plants were shut down in

Byrd Battles For Truman's Reform Bill

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer.

Senator Harry Flood Byrd (D., Va.), whose split with Franklin Roosevelt made legislative and political history, yesterday jumped into the fight to save President Truman's beleaguered Government reorganization bill.

The Virginian moved in the Senate to restore to a watered-down Senate reorganization bill the broad merger powers the President asked.

If Byrd wins, any reorganizations proposed by Mr. Truman would become law within 60 days, unless both houses of Congress turned them down by concurrent resolution.

Changed His Position

"I am here today for the first time, I think, during the time I have served in the Senate to say that I have changed my opinion; I have changed my position," Byrd told the Senate.

"I am doing it in the desperate hope that there may be some way to accomplish a reorganization of this Government."

As passed by the House the bill provided the same authority for the President Byrd proposed, but the Senate Judiciary Committee whittled it down to give either House acting alone the right to block a merger.

More Cutback Wanted

A GOP fight meanwhile was under way to cut back this authority even more. An amendment proposed by Senator Forrest C. Donnell, (R., Mo.), would require both Houses to adopt a resolution of approval before the mergers could take effect.

At the Capitol, it was common knowledge that President Truman would veto the reorganization bill if it is finally passed with the heart provision weakened, or loaded with bureau exemptions.

Byrd recalled that he had fought similar authority for President Roosevelt in 1939, supporting instead the 1939 Wheeler amendment which required affirmative congressional action in each case.

Before changing his position, Byrd disclosed that he recently

Transit Strike Denounced As 'Wildcat' by Vandenberg

By James E. Chinn
Post Staff Writer

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), yesterday vigorously denounced the "wildcat strike" of Capital Transit Co. employes, and called upon President Truman's Labor-Management Conference "to find a way to prevent strikes which violate collective bargaining contracts."

The Washington strike, he told the Senate, appeared to be in violation of at least two clauses of a contract between the company and the union:

1. A clause designed to prevent interruption of service during the life of a contract.

2. Another clause which set up arbitration for settlement of disputes not reconciled by collective bargaining.

Vandenberg said the CTCO tie-up was a vivid illustration of "travesty upon the word" because the contract between the company and the union "ceased to be a contract except at the option of the union" and thus became "a one-way scrap of paper."

"Unfortunately the transit strike was not an isolated episode," he declared. "It is entirely too typical of an unfortunate trend. The friends of free collective bargaining should do their best to stop this trend before it invites excessive reprisals. The existing situation is intolerable."

Collective bargaining contracts, backed by "practical penalties," must be made dependable, Vandenberg stressed, and, he added, it is

After Revelry Dies Down

Wife-Slayer to Be Executed When Banquet in Prison Ends

Canon City, Colo., Nov. 9 (U.P.).—Charles Ford Silliman, 35, a murderer, will be put to death in the State prison's gas chamber tonight "as soon as things quiet down" from a banquet in the prison dining room.

When the gay laughter, the singing and "boogie woogie" have died away, Silliman will be executed for poisoning his wife, Esther, and their 4-year-old daughter, Patricia.

The annual banquet of the farmers and merchants of Fremont County, began at 6:30 p. m. and will break up about 9:30 (11:30 p. m. EST). Silliman will enter the gas chamber around 10 p. m., Warden Roy Best said, "after the crowd has gone home."

Some 500 farmers and merchants and chamber of commerce officials arrived at the prison for the party. The banquet was a "Thanksgiving Day" turkey menu. Prominent citizens were to make speeches and the guests were to sing to the accompaniment of the prison orchestra. Liquor was barred.

Dr. George Nuckolls, a pastor and chaplain of the Grand Lodge of the B. P. O. E., was the chief speaker, his subject being, "Community Cooperation." Dr. Nuckolls is a member of the faculty of Western State College.

"We're sort of used to these executions—65 in the last 40 years—and don't pay much attention any more, I guess," one banqueter said.

The officials said the singing and boogie woogie by the prison band probably would be heard by the inmates of most cell blocks. But much of it will be kept from Silli-

Zhukov Sees 10-Year Stay Sufficient

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
STAFF SERGT. HAROLD KEMPNER

Berlin, Nov. 9 (AP).—An American staff sergeant who "crashed" Marshal G. K. Zhukov's reception Wednesday night quoted the Russian military leader today as saying the Allied occupation of Germany "could be completed in less than ten years if the Germans are cooperative."

The sergeant, Harold Kempner of 312 Columbia ave., Philadelphia, is a reporter for "Grooper," the weekly newspaper of the American Military Government. Kempner had no invitation to Zhukov's party, at which General Eisenhower was the ranking guest, but after he got in he went straight to the point.

Could End in 10 Years

The sergeant said Zhukov, answering a question, replied:

"Our job in Germany could be completed in less than 10 years if the Germans are cooperative and display an earnest desire to rid themselves of any taint of Hitlerism and Nazi ideology."

Kempner, who was born in Russia and lived in Lithuania, asked the Marshal in fluent Russian when he would visit the United States. He quoted Zhukov as replying:

"I am anxious to visit your land but important work will keep me busy here for a while. I hope, however, to be in the United States early next spring."

Kempner said the Marshal's aides began eyeing him and his ribbons from both the Pacific and European wars with some uneasiness, but he kept right on and told Zhukov:

"The watch market is the only medium of social relations between American and Russian soldiers and there is urgent need for establishing an inter-Allied club in Berlin where Allied soldiers could get to know each other better."

"That sounds good to me," the sergeant quoted Zhukov as saying, "the watch business is surely no way of promoting better understanding between soldiers."

Sees Big Task Ahead

When he asked Zhukov if he had any message for American soldiers, Kempner said the Marshal replied:

"Give them my regards and tell them the war is over but there is a big task ahead."

Kempner said Zmukov looked healthy and was so amiable that he tapped his interviewer on the shoulder once or twice.

Kempner said the only trouble he had all evening was when he arrived at Potsdam without an invitation and didn't know where the reception was being held. He solved that one by going to the Russian commander of the guard and telling him he was going to the party and needed an escort. He got one and soon was in the former Hohenzollern palace of the former Crown Prince.

Youth Gets Year For Attempting Store Robbery

An 18-year-old District youth who was surprised at the rear door of the Colony Radio Shop, 6119 Georgia ave., nw., with a screwdriver and hammer in his hand, was sentenced yesterday in Municipal Court to a year in jail after pleading guilty to attempted housebreaking.

The defendant, Page L. Smith, formerly of 1713 Trinidad ave. ne., waived a hearing on a charge of housebreaking at 3224 Georgia ave., nw., and was bound over to the Grand Jury.

Smith, who was on probation at the time of his arrest Thursday night, received an additional sentence of 120 days for violating probation rules.

The arresting officer said Page admitted he had pilfered money from juke boxes at the Greenbelt (Md.) Athletic Club 54 times in the last three years at an average "take" of $5 each time.

Will Testify Before Congress Hearing On Unification

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 9 (AP).—U. S. headquarters announced today General Eisenhower would leave "within a few hours" to testify before congressional committees in Washington, and authoritative sources predicted his trip was a prelude to an assignment to succeed Gen. George C. Marshall as Army Chief of Staff, perhaps late in December.

The official announcement said Eisenhower would return to Europe November 23 after testifying in the Capital and appearing in Boston and Chicago.

Asked by War Department

But rumors have long been current that Eisenhower would become Chief of Staff, and they have been given credence by the slow exodus of officers of his command into War Department positions where they could carry out his policies. It was said unofficially that Eisenhower would stay in Europe only a short time after November 23 to wind up his command in Germany and Austria.

It was learned that Eisenhower's trip home had been requested by the War Department. The American commander is expected to advocate to Congress the consolidation of armed forces into a National Department of Defense. He was one of the original and most outspoken advocates of unification of the armed services into one striking force as the chief lesson of this war.

(In Boston the Governor's office said Eisenhower would arrive by plane there at 1 p. m. Monday, weather permitting, and that the Governor planned a reception and State dinner for him at 7 p. m. that evening.)

Stop Off in Boston

The headquarters announcement said:

"Weather permitting, General Eisenhower is leaving within a few hours for a short trip to the United States to appear before committees of Congress. He will stop briefly in Boston on his way to Washington, and will later appear before the American Legion convention at Chicago to accept the Distinguished Service Medal of that organization.

"He expects to be back in this theater by November 23, so that he may keep immediate thereafter engagements in Scotland and England."

Eisenhower also is expected to report to President Truman on the status of military government in Germany.

If Eisenhower becomes Chief of Staff, sources here expect he will be succeeded as commander in Germany by Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, former United States commander in the Mediterranean theater.

Marshall Wants to Retire

Marshall, who reached the retirement age of 64 last December 31, is known to have expressed a desire to retire soon. Only two weeks ago, however, President Truman said he still needed Marshall in the top post of Chief of Staff.

Brig. Gen. Thomas Jefferson Davis, Eisenhower's adjutant general since the supreme commander first wetn to England in 1942, is scheduled to leave with his staff, and it is reported he will become chief of personnel in the adjutant general's office in Washington. Another of Eisenhower's top officers, Maj. Gen. Willard S. Paul, already has become assistant chief of staff in charge of GI (personnel).

Reassignment of key figures such as these usually precedes the transfer of the commander in chief in one theater to another.

Text of Forrestal's Letter To Patterson on Merger

Text of Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal's letter to Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson asking for a more harmonious discussion of the proposed Army-Navy-Air Forces merger:

For some time I have been concerned about the tone of the testimony which Army and Navy officers have been giving before the Senate Military Affairs Committee on the merger of the War and Navy Departments and this morning an incident occurred which finally prompts me to write you this letter.

During his testimony this morning, Lieut. Gen. (James H.) Doolittle, referring to statements made by Admirals Nimitz and Mitscher about the role of sea power in the Pacific, said: "Our B-29 boys are probably resting uneasily in their graves as the result of those statements." General Doolittle also referred to arguments advanced by witnesses before the committee as "hypocrisy."

I question whether we should allow the discussion of a proposal on which our departments are divided to lead us into impugning agree with us, and I question esthe good faith of people who dispecially whether death in any particular line of duty—and the resultant grief at home—should be appealed to in order to advance any individual point of view. The fact that on officer of Gen. Doolittle's caliber and admitted high qualities could be led to accuse responsible commanders of any service of disregard for the sacrifices made by the men of another service illustrates precisely the general drift of events which gives me such deep concern.

If we allow an honest difference over principle to degenerate into an exchange of personalities, we shall do irreparable harm to the end which we all seek in the name of national security: the comradeship of all branches of the armed services. Once destroyed in a passing controversy, that spirit cannot be revived by any legislativce fiat or organizational chart.

As I have said before, it seems to me we might avoid such injurious acrimony by elevating this whole deliberation to the level of a special injury by a presidential commission on the national security. Such a commission on one aspect of national security—the import of new weapons—was proposed by the joint chiefs of staff in their memorandum to us of October 24. In any event, I hope you will join with me in seeking to keep the discussion of the proposal now before Congress free from personalities which may leave lasting scars. I particularly want to caution all members of the naval service who may discuss this question publicly or privately against questioning the good faith and humanity of people who disagree with them; for that reason I am making this letter public.

Sincerely yours, James Forrestal.

participation of the United States in world affairs."

Attlee asserted that in his view "we must look to the United Nations and their close unity of purpose, especially that between Great Britain, the United States of America and Russia, as the foundation of peace."

Regarding Britain's domestic future, Attlee said: "We must be forward looking, seeking new subjects for our economic activity, new markets for our goods, and new methods of production.

"And in all this work it is, I think, recognized today that there must be a partnership between industry and the state. In the times in which we live we must have a planned economy."

Trade Increase Prime Objective

Great Britain, he added, regards a large and rapid increase in foreign trade "as an objective of prime importance. It has been much in our minds throughout the financial talks in Washington."

Attlee spoke at Mansion House, the Lord Mayor's residence, following the installation of Sir Charles Davis as Lord Mayor of London.

Meanwhile, a Moscow dispatch quoted political observers in the Soviet capital as saying they believed leaders of the United States and Britain might suggest a sharing of the secret of atomic energy if not the atomic bomb.

Soviet Commissar V. M. Molotov in a speech Tuesday suggested it was impossible for any real technical secret to remain an exclusive possession. He told the Russians "We will have atomic energy and many other things, too."

conditions during his flight across the Atlantic.

The pressing importance of Mr. Truman's preparations for the atomic discusions was indicated when he deferred his news conference until next week and devoted himself almost entirely to the question, as well as labor-management matters.

Also En Route to Capital

Mackenzie King arrived in New York today from a series of conferences in London and planned to leave for Washington tonight. Both the Canadian and British leaders were expected to go to the White House immediately upon their arrival as guests of the President.

The time of Attlee's address to a joint session of Congress was set for 12:30 p. m., EST., Tuesday.

Leslie Biffle, secretary of the Senate, announced that arrangements for the joint meeting of the Senate and House to hear the British Prime Minister had been completed.

The instructions for yielding of arms, given in advance to Indonesian contact bureaus, provide that the Indonesians march in single file and drop their arms at a place a certain distance from where the Nationalists will be required to sign an unconditional surrender.

President Soekarno of the unrecognized Indonesian republic, fearing an outbreak of shooting in Soerabaja may spread to savage warfare in all Java, sent appeals to President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee and to the United Nations Security Council to intercede.

(The White House said no such appeal had been received.)

In his communication to Attlee the Indonesian leader charged that the Dutch have succeeded in their alleged intention to create a misunderstanding between the Allied forces and the Indonesian people.

He charged that "irresponsible elements" among Allied troops were guilty of robbery and rape while on duty.

the midst of a controversy between Higgins and the American Federation of Labor over the industrialist's refusal to sign a new contract.

At the time more than 2000 AFL members were engaged in a walkout.

William L. Donnels, AFL publicity chairman, told civic groups here yesterday in a meeting with AFL committees that the men would agree to return to work if Higgins would sign the contract and retract statements he had made about AFL leaders.

Higgins has said he would not pursue the contract further with the AFL while the National Labor Relations Board was considering bargaining units at his plants, on the basis of a CIO application.

Four such banquets have been held in the prison dining room in previous years, but this is the first time the date has coincided with an execution. The dining room is the largest auditorium here and is rented to civic groups.

Milk Truck Rider Hurt in Collision With Streetcar

Alfred Lee, 45, Negro, of 2110 S. Monroe st., Arlington, suffered a possible skull fracture and back injuries shortly before 10 a. m. yesterday when the milk truck in which he was riding was struck by a streetcar at Pennsylvania ave. and M st. nw.

Driver of the truck, owned by the Chestnut Farms Dairy, was George A. Anderson, 37, Negro, of 1310 22d st. nw. Lee was his helper. Anderson was not injured.

The streetcar was operated by William A. Cristopher, 28, of 1234 34th st. nw. Police said Cristopher had been given a ticket for passing through a red light. Lee was taken to Emergency Hospital.

Frances P. Keyes, Novelist, Is Sued In Alex. Court

Mrs. Frances Parkinson Keyes, well-known novelist, formerly of Alexandria, has been named defendant in a suit for $1100 in a debt claim filed in Alexandria Corporation Court by David E. Bayliss, building contractor, of Telegraph rd., Fairfax County.

Bayliss said yesterday he is suing to attach Mrs. Keyes' house, Tradition, at 602 Cameron st., which is being purchased at an estimated $25,000 by the newly formed Alexandria Young Women's Christian Association as a main headquarters.

The claim, he said, is for an unpaid balance of a remodeling bill.

COMMAND

Rear Admiral J. O. Richardson (retired), chairman and sole dissenting member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff special committee which recommended unification of the armed services.

"The board itself was composed two admirals," Doolittle said, of four members, two generals and "The two Army members and the younger Navy member strongly recommended a Single Department.

150 Years Experience Cited

"The dissenting member was an elderly retired admiral who prefaced his minority report general remarks with this statement, 'The present organizations of the War and Navy Departments are the result of over one hundred and fifty years experience.'"

"We must realize that methods of warfare have changed, that today's methods and equipment are not the same as they were one hundred and fifty years ago and that tomorrow's weapons will be different from today's" Doolittle said.

Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King equally did not escape the whiplash of the Doolittle comment.

"It has been stated," Doolittle said, "that 'Any step that is not good for the Navy is not good for the Nation.'

"This puts Navy welfare—and expansion—on a par with national welfare and expresses the fundamentally falacious thinking behind the reasoning of the group who still think of the Navy as the first line of defense. The Navy is only one of the agencies which are charged with our national security."

The assertion quoted by Doolittle was made before the committee by King.

Forrestal's Argument Assailed

An argument advanced by Forrestal himself was likewise assailed.

"It has been said that the posts of Secretary for National Defense and Chief of Staff of the Armed Forces are too big and important for individuals to hold, that they would tend to establish 'empires.' This, to me, is ridiculous. They would merely streamline our effort, eliminate useless duplication and stop bickering."

The Navy Secretary, in his testimony, had stressed the fact that the Army's unification plan would give too much power to these two posts.

MILK

for putting controls back" on the manufacture of whipping cream, it is now generally unavailable because dairymen won't turn out double cream at the cost of whole milk.

Many Orders Cut

Production of whipping cream and buttermilk was stopped at most dairies yesterday; one particularly hard hit dairy gave up manufacture of cottage cheese as long as a month ago.

One dealer, Harvey Dairy, Inc., which serves Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, has been cutting its customers' orders by 10 to 15 per cent for the last two weeks.

Most dairymen who have been cutting corners and seeking new sources of supply for the last two weeks believe lifting of OPA ceilings on wholesale milk can "materially change the picture."

No Action by OPA

This would enable the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association to bring in milk from available sources in Ohio and Indiana.

OPA Price Division officials who met late yesterday on the District milk shortage took no action, but said they will "give the matter further consideration Tuesday."

Viewing the picture nationally, OPA executives said they "don't want to disturb the present balanced regulations of markets and prices. The milk shortage is general. If we issue a new order or amend the existing regulations to ease the District shortage, we'll have repercussions from Ohio sources."

Va. Officer Among 3 Killed in Plane Crash

Chico, Calif., Nov. 9 (AP).—The three officers who were killed Tuesday night in the crash of a B-29 plane near here were identified today by Col. A. W. Tyre, commanding officer, Chico Army Air Base.

They included First Lieut. Charles, S. Moffett, whose wife Frances Curtis Moffett, lives at Marshall, Va.

Electricity Rates Cut in Manassas Area

Manassas, Va., Nov. 9 (AP).—Reduced rates for rural residential service have been announced by the Prince William County Electric Cooperative, which has its generating plant and headquarters here.

The former rate of $3 for the first 25 kwh. per month is now $2, with other rates scaled down proportionately.

To Visit Balkans

Ethridge Set To See Reds On Survey

By the Associated Press

Mark Ethridge, Louisville publisher, will visit Moscow soon to discuss with Soviet officials details of his fact-finding trip to Bulgaria, Secretary of State Byrne announced yesterday.

Ethridge is on a special mission for Byrnes to Bulgaria and Romania. He's trying to determine whether the provisional governments of those countries are representative and whether their plans for national elections are democratic.

Byrnes said that Ethridge, who is publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times, has received Soviet approval for his Moscow visit.

Danger of Starving

The House Postwar Economic Policy Committee intends to tell Congress eight or ten million Germans will die of starvation and disease unless:

Russia quits stripping Germany of consumer goods industries not considered part of a war-making potential, or

The United States, as the only nation able to, feeds the Germans who otherwise would starve as a result of the Russian reparations collections.

A committee member, who asked not to be identified, told a reporter these are among findings in a report agreed to by the committee and soon to be released.

Criticisms Softened

This member also said some of the criticisms of Russia made a month ago by Chairman Colmer (D., Miss.) and six other members of a subcommittee after a two-month tour of Europe had been "softened" by the full committee. This was done, he said, by including in the report statements that some of the Russian practices recited are necessary under present conditions.

The report, he added, also emphasized at some length Russia's need for American loans.

He said, too, the report will urge rapid reconstruction of Germany to the point where she can feed herself and become a factor in American trade without representing a war threat to the rest of the world.

called at the White House to sound out President Truman's economy views.

"I wanted to know whether he could convince me that he desired in his heart to effect a reorganization of the Government if he had the power to do so," Byrd said. "He did convince me that he desires to do it."

Comparing Truman's ideas on economy with those he said the late President held, Byrd said:

Wants to Economize

"I believe that President Truman is far more economy-minded than was Mr. Roosevelt. I believe he is far more desirous of economizing and bringing about efficiency in the Administration than was the late President Roosevelt."

Opposing the Byrd amendment, Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) told the Senate nothing was saved under the reorganization authority granted Roosevelt.

"Those consolidations were conducted by Franklin Roosevelt," Byrd replied. "The reorganization under this bill will be conducted by Harry S. Truman. In my judgment, a great distinction is involved."

Would Depend on Truman

Byrd said he is now convinced the only way to reorganize the Government "is to give the power ofreorganization to the President, and then depend upon him to accomplish it, and hold him to a strict accountability."

"Present conditions are vastly different from those existing in 1939," he said. "Today we have nearly four times as many Federal employes as we had in 1939. I believe we have nearly four times as many bureaus, departments and agencies of the Government."

Speaking against the Donnell amendment to require affirmative congressional action on each merger plan, Senator Carl A. Hatch (D., N. Mex.), said it would "kill the bill." Hatch said there would then be no point in passing a bill with the Donnell amendment since the President now has authority to submit legislative recommendations.

"Responsible management knows that free collective bargaining is here to stay and that progressive law must continue to support it, and that it must be wholeheartedly accepted," he declared.

"Responsible labor leadership knows that irresponsible strikes and subversive attacks upon essential production are the gravest threats to the permanent success of labor's bill of rights."

Marines in China To Aid Surrender

Navy Denies Troops Are to Participate In Civil War There

Presence of more than 50,000 United States Marines in China is not "for any purpose connected with the conflict between the Nationalists and the Communist elements," the Navy Department declared last night.

They are, the Navy said, "occupying an area in North China along the Peiping-Tientsin-Chinwangtao line of communication and at Tsingtao for the purpose, and for the purpose only, of assisting the Chinese National Government to effect surrender fo Japanese forces in North China and to carry out the terms of that surrender in accordance with international agreement."

Chinese Communists have protested their presence and have declared that full responsibility for all "grave consequences" which might result would rest with the United States. The Communist New China Daily News has charged that American troops and armor spearheaded the Nationalists' capture of a village and a railway station, although it said this alleged intervention had been bloodless.

Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer recently said that wihle United States forces have been drawn into minor skirmishes in North China, they definitely were not provoking trouble.

said the President was "dependent on the Secretary of the Navy, the Secretary of War, Mr. Samuel I. Rosenman and White House advisers in this matter."

He went on to say that the order "seems to have been designed with devilish ingenuity to leave the members of the executive department up in the air as to what they are supposed to do."

"People Want to Know"

Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.), who with Brewster touched off the Senate row, declared:

"If the committee is to be crippled, if it is to go into this investigation on crutches, then the Senate wants to know and Congress wants to know and the people want to know."

Brewster added:

"This new order seems to make it impossible for us to discuss with Army and Navy officials and Government employes information that is contained in the files."

Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky, chairman of the investigating committee, said the Republicans were attempting to create an impression that the committee is being "gagged" and those who want to see the inquiry fail would like that.

"The President has done exactly what we asked him to do and that is to permit people in the Government to volunteer any information they have," Barkley contended.

"Public Will Be Satisfied"

"When the public has heard the testimony, it will be entirely satisfied with the course this committee has voted to pursue," Barkley added.

Meanwhile, over in the House two Republican members of the committee decided to do their own investigating.

Representatives Keefe (R., Wisc.) and Gearhart (R., Calif.) went to Bethesda Naval Hospital and interviewed Capt. Alwin D. Kramer, naval intelligence officer. They were there four hours.

Keefe had declared on the floor of the House that Kramer was held incommunicado by the Navy and was "beleagured" for his knowledge of decoded Japanese messages before the attack. It was his contention that these messages tipped off the impending attack, that Kramer delivered them to "higher authorities" and nothing was done about it.

Nationalists must withdraw if the government is to comply with Red demands for a return to prefighting status. He insisted that Peitaiho was taken forcibly from the Communists by government troops spearheaded by U. S. marines.

Chinwangtao, Peiping and Tientsin, currently occupied by marines, fall into a different category, he said, but are "subject to future negotiations."

The Communists addressed a vigorous protest to President Truman against American "armed intervention in Chinese internal affairs," and asserted that weapons which America made to defeat Japan "have through the hands of Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer (U. S. commander in China) become weapons for slaughtering the Chinese people."

American transportation of Nationalist troops to Red-liberated areas, the Communist spokesman here declared, "will only prolong the civil war." Civil war, he said, began "September 17, when the National Military Council distributed anti-bandit handbooks."

Evil Effects Predicted

Adding that peace talks, resumed Thursday, had made "no progress," he repeated Thursday's Communist allegations that an unheralded meeting of Nationalist military talent here Saturday will likely have "evil effects." The conference, insistent but unofficial reports said, will deal with "bandit suppression." Communists maintain that this is merely another name for war on Communists.

(Associated Press Correspondent Fred Hampson reported after visiting the Peiping area that the tense situation there involves not only Communists but "the remnants of puppet forces, brigands, hangovers from warlords' armies, agrarian reform leaders, and a lot of people who just like to raise hell.")

Seen as Likely Hottest Spot

Bergholz, in Chinwangtao, confirmed the report that Reds—in that area, at least—have been largely fighting with words rather than bullets. He termed the local area near Chinwangtao "dangerously tense," but said there had been no major action in the past two weeks.

Shanhaikwan, coastal terminus of the Great Wall, north of Chinwangtao, likely will be the hottest spot when and if the main push of Nationalists toward Manchuria begins, he reported.

19 More POW Camps to Close In This Area

Baltimore, Nov. 9 (AP).—The Third Service Command announced today that the repatriation of 5555 German prisoners of war from this area would result in the discontinuance of one base and 18 branch POW camps by November 15.

There are 24 base and 42 branch camps in the area.

The service command said that camps already closed were at Dundalk, Hurlock, Berlin and Easton, Md.; Carlisle and Stewartstown, Pa., and at Sandy Level, Va. The tent portion of the camp at Gettysburg, Pa., has been closed. Prisoners were not actually removed from any except the Stewartstown camp, the Army announcement said.

Will Center Captives

The Green Ridge, Md., and Lyndhurst and White Hall, Va., branch camps are remaining open to house excess prisoners until they are called for repatriation by the War Department, the announcement continued.

Of the 5555 now earmarked for repatriation, an original 1000 had been ordered from Fort Eustis, Va., and Indiantown Gap Military Reservation, Pa. Seven hundred came from Eustis, the others would be from Indiantown Gap, the Army command said.

The service command said a more recent order called for 4555 to be ready to move about November 17, to be drawn from Edgewood Arsenal, Holabird Signal Depot, Camp Somerset at Westover and the Gaithersburg and Pikesville branch camps in Maryland; Fort Eustis, Richmond Army Services Forces Depot, Camp Pickett, and the Catawba, Winchester and Timberville branch camps in Virginia, and from Camp Reynolds, Tobyhanna military reservation and the Reading and Model Farms (Philadelphia) branch camps in Pennsylvania.

35,000 Still in Area

The Army announcement said there are now about 35,000 German POW's in the Third Service Command, compared to 37,000 in September.

Prisoner of war branch camps which will be closed by November 15, in addition to those already discontinued are: The Church Hill, Gaithersburg and Westminister, Md., branch camps; the Catawba, Cumberland, Ettinger, Leesburg, Fairfax and Timberville, Va., branch camps and the camp at Tobyhanna Military Reservation, Pa.

Camps at Kane, Sheffield, and Marienville, Pa., are scheduled to be closed January 1.

'Divorce Without Notice' Hit By Md. Judge; Nullifies One

By the United Press

Baltimore, Nov. 9 (AP).—A proposal to change Maryland divorce laws to prevent granting of decrees without verification of notice to nonresident defendants came from Judge Joseph Sherbow after he set aside such a divorce on the ground of "outrageous fraud."

The Baltimore Supreme bench jurist, who nullified a divorce obtained last April 6 by James M. Otwell from Mae Q. Otwell, said in an oral opinion that although Otwell knew his wife was living in Chester, Pa., no notice was given of the divorce proceedings. Otwell later remarried.

"This situation illustrates most forcibly the weakness in our procedure, which permits one spouse to obtain a divorce without actual notice to the other spouse, and only requires a simple order of publication, even where the address of the absent spouse is known," Judge Sherbow declared.

Judge Sherbow said he was sending the record of the case to the State's attorney for consideration of possible perjury charges.

Mrs. Otwell, asking the court to set aside the decree, said her husband had testified falsely that she had abandoned him in October, 1941, and that they had not lived together since that date.

Mrs. Otwell and her daughter both testified the couple had lived together until October, 1944, Judge Sherbow said. Otwell did not give his wife notice of the divorce proceedings although he knew she was living in Chester, the Judge added.

He said the legislative council was now making a thorough study of the situation. "In the meantime," he said, "divorce suits are being instituted in large numbers involving non-resident defendants . . ."

"I think it is time that the courts publicly serve notice on people seeking divorce, whether they testify in open court or before the examiner, that they must testify to the truth and if they do not, they will be punished."

Albert Carter Rites Held in Charlottesville

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.).—Funeral rites for Albert Goodman Carter, 72, who had engaged in the mercantile business here for over half a century, were held this afternoon from the First Baptist Church.

Born June 6, 1871, at "Locust Grove," near Red Hill, he came to Charlottesville 52 years ago and entered the mercantile business, in which he remained until the time of his death. He was a former member of the city council, and had long been a member of the board of deacons of the First Baptist Church.

He married Miss Mayna Garland Wheeler of Albemarle. She survives, with two daughters, Mrs. Guy F. Via and Mrs. Dan O. Via, both of this city. He also leaves one sister, Mrs. Rufus W. Powell of Newport News.

John W. King

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 9.—John William King, 56, retired salesman, in the employ of the Charlottesville Hardware Co. for 19 years, died yesterday at University Hospital. The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon. Mr. King was a native of Staunton. He married Miss Hannah Brower of Augusta County. She survives, together with seven children.

Miss Susie L. Jones

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 9.—Funeral services were held in Bowling Green yesterday for Miss Susie L. Jones, 87-year-old Caroline County resident, who died at her home near Partlow. She is survived by a brother, Henry Jones.

A. F. Brown 3d

Baltimore, Nov. 9 (AP).—A. Freeborn Brown 3d, 72-year-old Harford County attorney who long had been active in Democratic politics, died yesterday at Union Memorial Hospital, where he had been a patient for a week. Surviving are his widow, two sons and two daughters. Funeral services will be held Monday.

Frank G. Piercy

Baltimore, Nov. 9 (AP).—Frank G. Piercy, 52, assistant superintendent of the Maryland Training School for Boys at Loch Raven, died last night at University Hospital after an illness of several months. A graduate of the University of Iowa, Piercy worked in the Children's Village, Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., before coming to the Maryland school as supervisor of education. He was appointed assistant superintendent about five years ago. His widow survives him.

River Patrol Boost by Va. Hailed in Md.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 9 (AP).—Increased support in the fight against oyster poachers in the Potomac River "will be most welcome."

That comment was made yesterday by Edwin Warfield, jr., chairman of the Maryland Commission of Tidewater Fisheries, on a decisoin by Gov. Colgate W. Darden of Virginia and Charles M. Lankford, Virginia commissioner of fisheries, to use extra patrol boats on the Potomac and Rappahannock rivers in the drive against the poachers.

Warfield said:

"If this means increased suport and cooperation in enforcing the law in the Potomac, it will be most welcome in Maryland. Violations are extremely difficult to control, and Maryland has borne the principal share of the burden to date."

He said most of the nocturnal poachers were harboring on the Virginia side and declared that Maryland maintained four patrol boats on the Potomac compared with Virginia's "two small boats with two men."

He said air patrols had aided considerably in patrol and enforcement but said it would be better if the commission had an amphibious plane rather than the land-based plane now used.

Young Mother of 3 Slain; Husband Held in Elkton

Elkton, Md., Nov. 9 (AP).—A 25-year-old Perryville father was held in the Cecil County Jail at Elkton today following the fatal shooting of his young wife as she ran through a back yard toward the nearby home of her parents.

Deputy Sheriff Harry Minker said Edward Bines was being held without bail for questioning; arrested Bines last night as he stood with a group of neighbors at Perryville and near the body of his dead wife, Mabel, 20.

Minker said Bines and other witnesses told him that the shooting followed a domestic quarrel and occurred as Mrs. Bines fled from a back door. She was killed by a small-caliber rifle bullet, the deputy added.

The deputy sheriff quoted Bines that there was no intent to kill Mrs. Bines, but that the shot aimed to pass near her.

Bines has three small children, the youngest aged 6 months.

Carwile Seeks Prison Probe By Darden

Richmond, Va., Nov. 9 (AP).—A formal request will be made Monday to Governor Darden for the chief executive to conduct a hearing on charges of several irregularities at the State farm, attorney Howard H. Carwile said today.

Carwile is representing Edward I. Wall, under sentence of three years at the State prison on conviction of bigamy, whose sister, Mrs. Helen Kuntz, of Alexandria, La., has complained Wall is in a poor physical condition as a result of his stay at the farm, asserting that he has not had proper medical attention. Mrs. Kuntz, further charges prisoners, including her brother, have been mistreated at the farm. Mrs. Kuntz employed Carwile.

The Governor has already turned down a previous request by Carwile for this type of hearing, but has promised that the State Board of Corrections will hear the case when a request is made to thtat body.

Gathers More Evidence

Carwile said he would spend today and tomorrow gathering evidence to present to Governor Darden Monday. Much of his time will be spent, Carwile said, in interviewing men recently discharged from the State Farm. He said his objection to a hearing by the State Board of Corrections is that it would be a "self- investigation."

The lawyer said that if the Governor again refuses to conduct the hearing personally, he will seek assurance that a hearing before the Board of Corrections would be an open affair, with newspapermen permitted to attend. He said he will not appear at a closed hearing. In addition, Carwile said, he will ask Governor Darden for assurance that any State farm inmates who might testify at the hearing would not be punished for doing so. The lawyer said he has names of 60 prisoners who have said they will testify if they are protected.

Youell in Denial

Meanwhile, Maj. Rice M. Youell, commissioner of corrections, denied a statement by Wall that he had swung his hand by the prisoner's face and said, "No one is going to hit you yet awhile," when he visited the farm to talk with Wall.

Major Youell also declared Wall had twice told his sister he had been beaten over the head with a pistol and his teeth knocked out, but had told Major Youell he had not been beaten. In his interview with Carwile, Wall said he had not been beaten and his sister had never said Wall was beaten. She said she obtained this information from a relative of another prisoner.

The commissioner did say, however, he gave R. L. Royster, superintendent of the farm, authority to whip prisoners, as the Virginia law provides, on September 19 when 12 men refused to work in a muddy cornfield. Wall, whom Major Youell said was not one of those whipped, asserted Royster presided at the mass beating armed with a riot gun. Carwile has designated Royster as the main target of his investigation and has declared he believes the man is "unfit" to hold his position.

More X-rays Planned

Wall today was scheduled to go to the Medical College hospital for further X-rays. He already has been examined by five doctors in the State Penitentiary and by doctors at the State farm.

Prison authorities have termed Wall a "malingerer who feigns sickness." Carwil esaid today, however, "I am willing for any fair-minded man to look at Wall and then say whether or not he is feigning illness. If Wall is in such excellent condition, I wish they would quit hiding his pathetic figure from preachers and newspapermen." Carwile says penitentiary authorities have refused a minister known by the Wall family permission to see Wall.

Professor Hits Santa Claus, Stork Myths

Baltimore, Nov. 9 (AP).—Poor Santa Claus got the old heave-ho today—along with the stork—from Sociology Prof. Ivan E. McDougle of Goucher College, who declared that "parents should substitute democratic philosophy."

"The Santa Clause myth has lived too long in terms of child psychology," Professor McDougle said in an interview with the Baltimore News-Post. "Parents should substitute democratic philosophy. Children have to learn to get along."

And when it comes to living too long, "so has the stork myth," McDougle added.

It wasn't that Professor McDougle forgot how close it's getting to Christmas, but just a question of facing facts with facts.

"We are a superscientific people," he continued. "We can solve material problems, but if we try to solve social problems they say we are setting up a 'brain trust.' They laugh at it. We don't face facts with immaterial problems."

McDougle didn't find complete agreement, however, from one psychiatrist, Dr. George Preston, Maryland commissioner of mental hygiene.

Dr. Preston defended Santa warmly as a means of teaching children kindness, generosity and honesty. "It is a valuable myth," he said, "and stories and myths are useful and harmless—but the truth is essential.

"We don't tell children that Little Red Riding Hood is a factual person, or that Jack and the Beanstalk is true. Well, why, then, tell them that Santa Claus is real?

"I believe in telling the truth."

Col. Ridgeley Back in Va. With Family

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.).—Lieut. Col. Reginald H. Ridgely jr., known as "The Bull" to thousands of marines who have served under him, stood unbowed through 39 months of Jap imprisonment.

The 43-year-old officer, who was captured with the remnants of his famed Fourth Marine Regiment on Corregidor, has joined his wife and two children here. He is a graduate of St. John's College, Annapolis, Md., of which his late father was president.

Colonel Ridgely's weight fell from a normal of 195 pounds from the time of his capture to 125 when he was liberated in Korea.

Marine Private First Class Reinholdt Aschenbrenner of Lincoln, Nebr., who has returned to the States from Jap imprisonment, and other marines with the colonel in captivity, said "He never bowed to the Japanese, and he worked like hell for the men."

At Cabanatuan camp in the Philippines, Colonel Ridgely said "Our meals consisted of rice and soup—damned thin soup—and we just did not have enough to live on." He said conditions in the camp improved later in 1942 and the men received Red Cross food items.

"The Bull" was one of 1600 men put aboard a transport bound for Japan late in 1944. The ship was torpedoed and he was one of 400 to survive. He was subsequently transferred to Korea.

"I am only 8 pounds underweight now," said Colonel Ridgely.

'Government In Business' Is Defended

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.).—The entry of "Government in business," so often under fire from business, is necessary for the protection of public interest in view of the economic changes wrought by the industrial revolution, Dr. George W. Spicer, professor of political science at the University of Virginia, told a chamber of commerce affairs clinic here yesterday.

Speaking before city and State businessmen and officials of local, State and national chambers of commerce, Dr. Spicer set as keynote for the day's meeting: "Seek first the public interest without mental reservations or rationalization and your own private interest will be adequately cared for."

In his explanation for the growth in governmental power, Dr. Spicer traced the gradual consolidation of economic power resulting from the industrial revolution. He said that the beginning of the change dated from 1882 with the organization of Standard Oil and that by 1914 one eighth of the total number of corporate businesses in the Nation employed three fourths of all employes and produced in value more than four fifths of all the products. By the early 30s, about 200 giant corpoartion were doing one half of the corporate business of the Nation.

"Government as an agent of all the people has got to be bigger and stronger than any one or any combination of special economic power," he declared, pointing out that under present-day conditions the welfare of an entire community can be determined by a single corporation.

Dr. Spicer appealed for greater sympathy for national legislators, who are "hounded from every quarter" by organized pressure groups. "The job of the President and Congress is to reconcile the counterclaims of the special groups and to work out a synthesis as nearly as possible representative of the general public interest," he explained. ". . . if we are wise and use insight, we will seek first the public interest rather than our own, because that is the only way our own can be safeguarded for the future."

Dr. Hundley, 77, Dies; Ex-Head of Lynchburg College

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 9 (AP).—Dr. John Thomas Trible Hundley, president emeritus of Lynchburg College, died early today at Mathews, where he had been living since his retirement a few years ago.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed this morning, but relatives here said he would be buried at Dunnsville, where he was born March 1, 1868.

He was widely known as a Disciple of Christ clergyman and educator, and held pastorates in eastern Virginia, including First Christian Church, Norfolk, before coming to Lynchburg April 1, 1914, as field secretary of Lynchburg College.

Dr. Hundley was named president of the institution in June, 1915.

Surviving are his wife, the former Sue Fleet Waker; a son, Dr. J. T. T. Hundley, jr., Lynchburg physician, and six daughters.

Dr. Hundley retired as president of Lynchburg College in 1936, but remained on the campus several years assisting with financial matters.

United Nations Relief Appoints New Counsel

DIARY NOTES: Alfred E. Davidson is the new general counsel of United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation. He formerly was FEA general counsel . . . Nathan Ostroff is general counsel of Commerce's new Office of International Trade Operations . . . Henry Reining will resign as director of the National Institute of Public Affairs to join a New York management firm. He directed the placement of internes in Federal offices . . . Merritt Penticoff is temporarily operating RFC's surplus consumer goods division. He's on loan from the Surplus Property Administration . . . The Civil Service Commission will order Federal agencies to reinstate disabled veterans who have been laid off since October 19, the date when the President directed they be made eligible for permanent Government jobs.

KLUTTZ

Group Health Association has reopened its membership list and it is accepting applications from Federal workers . . . Wayne C. Taylor is a good bet to be named chairman of the Export-Import Bank. . . . The Navy's Price Adjustment Board needs accountants with several years of public accounting experience. The board was set up to recapture excess war profits and it needs able accountants to analyze the financial statements of war contractors. Those interested may get further information by calling Navy, Republic 7400, Branch 61716. . . . Lieut. Col. Frederick Ordway, jr., has been appointed chief of the aircraft division of the Foreign Liquidation Commissioner in the State Department . . . The officers' terminal leave bill was sent to conference yesterday to include officers of the Public Health Service. Final congressional action on the bill will be taken next week.

PAY BILL: A board of examiners for scientific personnel, similar to the old board of legal examiners, was recommended to the Senate Civil Service Committee yesterday by Dr. Vannevar Bush, director of the Office of Scientific Research and Development. This special board would select, classify and place scientists in the Federal service. The eminent witness bluntly told the committee that "present Civil Service salaries are no longer adequate to attract and hold enough good men for the functions of Government that involve high scientific talent." He emphasized the part science had played in the war and he anticipated even greater developments in the postwar period. Dr. Bush specifically indorsed the amendments which would raise the employe salary ceiling from $9800 to $15,000.

While most complimentary of the work of the Civil Service Commission, Dr. Bush said its "facilities had been inadequate during the war to manage the difficult job of allocating and classifying the technical positions in the way that they should have been handled." He suggested the proposed board be made up of men who were the peers of the men who will occupy scientific jobs in the Government. He said there was a tendency in Civil Service to rate a scientist on the basis of the number of employes who worked under his direction. He added that some of the most valuable scientists worked alone. Civil Service Commissioner Arthur S. Flemming promptly told the committee that he was in full agreement with Dr. Bush on the proposed examining board and that the commission had already created a scientific personnel advisory committee to work out better procedures for scientific people.

OPPOSITION: Meantime, the Senate heard the first outright opposition to the pay bill. Senator Willis of Indiana, said blanket increases would be inappropriate and perhaps even dangerous at this time. He admitted that salary increases might be justified for some employes but he said this was no reason why they should be given to all employes. "The proposals," he said, "made on the very eve of the management-labor conference can have no effect but to spur organized labor to greater demands for increases. This," he said, "would lead to disastrous inflation." Senator Willis is not a member of the Civil Service Committee and he hasn't heard the testimony presented in behalf of the 20 per cent bill.

RETIREMENT: The Senate Civil Service Committee yesterday gave a favorable report to the Morse bill which allows Federal employes who were retired before January, 1942, to recompute their annuities under the liberalized law. Each retired employe affected would get an increased pension if the bill becomes law. Senator Hickenlooper of Iowa will handle the bill on the Senate floor. When the committee meets Wednesday in executive session, it will also consider the Randolph bill, which would authorize Federal agencies to set up medical units to protect the health of their employes. Representative Randolph told the committee yesterday that his bill has the support of medical and business interests. Strategy on the pay bill also will be discussed at the Tuesday meeting.

Strike Ends, Bay Ferries Chug Again

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 9 (AP).—Chesapeake ferries chugged out of their slips at Norfolk and Newport News early today for the first trips across Hampton Roads since October 21 when service was disrupted by the strike of licensed personnel.

Arthur Hitch, president of the Chesapeake Ferry Co., announced last night that agreements had been reached wth the unions and the boats would resume their regular runs today between Pine Beach and Newport News and Willoughby and Old Point Comfort.

Several days ago the two unions actually on strike—Masters Mates and Pilots Local No. 9 and the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association—arrived at an agreement, but resumption of service was held until a settlement was effected with the Seafarers International Union. The SIU was not on strike but had been negotiating with the company for some time.

The agreement between the company and licensed personnel, who struck for a reduction in their hours of 24 on and 24 off, calls for an 8-hour day, six days a week, with overtime pay for more than 8 hours. Formerly, licensed personnel got overtime after 56 hours, figured on a weekly basis.

Union spokesmen said the agreement calls for not more than 12 hours a day, and this would be held to except in cases of emergency.

Duck Deaths Laid To Food Poisoning On Hooper Island

By the Associated Press

The deaths of five ducks found last week on Hooper Island in lower Dorchester County was ascribed yesterday as probably due to botulism, a type of food poisoning.

Dr. Donald R. Coburn, in charge of disease investigation at the United States Patuxent research refuge, said that tests substantiated the original belief that the five ducks had died of botulism. Injection of poisonous material from their bodies had not caused the death of test animals, he said.

Dr. Coburn added that several sick ducks brought in by agents of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service now were under observation at the refuge.

Earlier this week, State Game Warden Ernest A. Vaughn said that reports of duck deaths had come also from Queen Annes, Kent and Talbot counties. He said the deaths apparently had occurred in isolated instances.

New Ferryboat Need Emphasized

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 9 (AP).—Governor O'Conor said today that a large increase in Sandy Point-Matapeake Ferry traffic in October shows the need for a new ferryboat for which bids were opened Tuesday by the State Roads Commission.

The Governor said that Ferry Manager B. Frank Sherman reported a total of 61,724 passengers, besides drivers, used the line during the month, an increase of 17,075 over 1944.

Automobile traffic jumped to 26,310, an increase of 7,847 cars for the month, while truck traffic increased from 4,046 in the previous year to 5,210.

Mother Is Held For Beating Girl

Petersburg, Va., Nov. 9 (AP).—A police court hearing for Mrs. Mildred Piper, 39, on a charge that she feloniously assaulted last Sunday her 11-year-old daughter, Jo Eleanor, has been continued until November 13. The defendant, who is being held in the Women's Detention Home pending application for bail, pleaded innocent to the charge. The woman is the wife of an overseas soldier.

Condition of the child, who suffered a severe head injury which police say was inflicted by a blunt instrument, was reported slightly improved yesterday, although she has not regained consciousness. Mrs. Piper was arrested after a physician had been called to treat the child.

PBK Honors 8 At W. & M. College

Williamsburg, Va., Nov. 9 (AP).—The Alpha of Virginia chapter of Phi Beta Kappa has announced the election of eight members of the senior class at the College of William and Mary to membership in the honor society.

Four of the students elected are from Virginia. Miss Lucille Burbank, of Hampton; Robert Henry Bryant, of Manassas; Ennis Samuel Rees, jr., of Newport News, and Miss Frances Wills Lee Young, of Norfolk.

Initiation will be held December 5, the 169th anniversary of the founding of the Phi Peta Kappa at the College of William and Mary.

Adm. Byrd to Attend Berryville Rally

Berryville, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.).—Admiral Richard E. Byrd was added to the list of the distinguished guests who will attend the combined Armistice Day program and Victory Loan rally here Sunday afternoon. U. S. Army Chief of Staff Gen. George C. Marshall will deliver the main address.

Admiral Byrd, who has recently returned from Tokyo and a scientific study of the damage done by atomic bombs dropped on Nagasaki and Hiroshima, will be introduced by Stacy B. Lloyd, chairman of the Clarke County Victory Loan campaign.

State to Start Work On 2 Rail Crossings

Baltimore, Nov. 9 (AP).—Construction of an overhead bridge at Halethorpe and an underpass at Arbutus, eliminating railroad crossings, are on the spring schedule of the State Roads Commission.

W. P. Ballard, chief engineer, said that the commission plans to start work on both projects this spring whether or not Federal funds were forthcoming. He said the commission hoped to complete the work by the end of 1946.

His statement came after Mrs. Doris I Turner of Halethorpe escaped from her car, stalled on the Halethorpe grade crossing, just before it was struck and demolished by two express trains yesterday morning.

Va. Track Cleared After Train Wreck Killing Engineer

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 9 —Southern Railway trains today moved on a single cleared track, passing the scene of last night's wreck near Altavista in which Engineer W. G. Lloyd of Spencer, N. C., was killed, Fireman Walton L. Sisk of Durham, N. C., seriously burned and 50 cars were derailed.

A northbound Southern freight train sideswiped a Virginian Railway switch engine train at Hurt, Va., south of Altavista at the Virginia crossing, it was reported.

Lloyd was crushed to death under a gasoline filled tank car on the Southern train of which he was engineer. Sisk, 25, scalded by steam from the locomotive as he struggled out of the wreck, was in "fair" condition today in Lynchburg General Hospital, where he is being treated for serious burns.

Traffic was blocked for hours on the Southern tracks, and southboun passenger trains arrived at Charlotte about 6 hours late after the wreck.

State Will Observe Holiday on Monday

Richmond, Va., Nov. 9 (AP).—Armistice Day, which this year falls on Sunday, will be observed as a legal holiday by State and Federal agencies on Monday, with city offices closing Saturday.

Banks will join Federal and State agencies in closing Monday, it was announced here yesterday, but alcoholic beverage control stores will remain open both Saturday and Monday.

The postoffice announced that there will be no city, rural or parcel post mail deliveries Monday.

Peddicord Files Again

Baltimore, Nov. 9 (AP).—Stephen B. Peddicord, many-times candidate for many offices, announced last night he had filed for the Democratic nomination for Governor. He received no votes when he ran for Governor in 1938.

New Charlottesville Pastor Installed

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.).—The Rev. Malcolm Read Sutherland, jr., formerly of the Universalist Church of Hoopeston, Ill., was installed as the minister of the Thomas Jefferson Unitarian Society here tonight, following ordination services held at the Monticello Hotel.

Dr. John Rowland Lathrop, for 34 years minister of the Church of the Savior, Brooklyn, N. Y., delivered the ordination sermon. An informal reception followed.

Also participating in the program were Dr. Henry Wilder Foote, former professor at Harvard University, who served as the local society's minister for the past two years, and the Rev. Dale DeWitt, regional director of the American Unitarian Association.

The new minister received his bachelor's degree from Miami University, his master's degree from Western Reserve University, and after studying at the University of Chicago received his degree in divinity from the Meadville Theological School.

Youth Is Paroled In Court Attack

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 9 (AP).—James Marshall, 17, of Baltimore, held in connection with an assault in Ferndale Police Court, was paroled in the custody of his family today after a hearing in Juvenile Court before Judge James Clark.

The judge ordered the youth put under the supervision of Anne Arundel County Juvenile Officer C. Addison Hodges.

Philip Hayden, who suffered a head injury in the Police Court incident, appeared in court today, Judge Clark said, apparently recovered.

The alleged assault took place during the hearing of a case involving young Marshall's brother.

O'Conor Sets Date For Hanging of Slayer

Annapolis, Md., Nov 9 (AP).—Governor O'Conor today set November 30 as the date for hanging of Donald Brooks, 32, Baltimore, who was convicted of the slaying of Mary Finn, 63, in Baltimore, July 1, 1944.

Brooks was tried in Baltimore Criminal Court and sentenced November 9, 1944. The hanging will take place at the Maryland Penitentiary.

4 Bids Reported For Scottsville Tire Cord Plant

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.).—At least four nationally prominent manufacturers, including the United States Rubber Company, present operators, are reported to have entered bids for the purchase of the Defense Plants Corporation-constructed tire cord plant at Scottsville, in the southern part of the county, at present employing about 400 persons.

According to reliable sources, those reported to have filed bids for its purchase with the Surplus Properties Administration, Government agency disposing of the plant built as a war project, include, besides U. S. Rubber, the B. F. Goodrich and Firestone companies, and Johnson & Johnson, makers of surgical dressings.

The $2,240,000 plant, constructed last year by DPC, war plant builders for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to be operated by U. S. Rubber for the manufacture of rayon tire cord for use in synthetic rubber tires, was offered for sale by RFC on September 19. SPA, the disposal agency, is now receiving bids for its purchase and it is understood these negotiations are in an advanced stage and a decision is expected soon.

Ancient Hart Homestead Sold

Warrenton, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.).—Historic Hartford, home of the Hart family for over 200 years, has been sold by Arthur R. Hart to J. W. Bryant of Warrenton.

Located on the Lee Highway about five miles from Warrenton, the 226-acre tract borders the Rappahannock River. The property originally contained about 2,000 acres, when it was settled by Robert Hart, great-grandfather of Arthur R. Hart, who came from Scotland.

St. Elizabeths Survey

The critical analyses to which St. Elizabeths Hospital has been subjected ought to be the starting point for a campaign to modernize that institution. One of the investigators reiterated what we had already pointed out—that St. Elizabeths is regarded as a model institution and therefore has a responsibility to every mental patient in the country as well as to its own. The reports of the investigators leave no doubt that it falls critically short of meeting this obligation.

Like so many of our other institutions, St. Elizabeths has been overloaded with far more patients than it can properly care for. Investigators of the Public Buildings Administration found 1600 more inmates at the hospital than can be reasonably accommodated. This excess population includes about 300 patients housed in a fire-trap. Many of the other buildings are antiquated and the important Occupational Therapy Building is in "extremely poor condition."

Probably much more important are the deficiencies in the treatment of patients revealed by three outstanding authorities in this field. Dr. Edward A. Strecher, adviser to the Navy on psychiatric problems, recommended an assistant superintendent and five appointments to the psychiatric staff, improvements in the psychotherapy available to patients and a playground for women. Certainly this advice should command attention, for one of the most persistent criticisms of the hospital is that it offers too little modern psychotherapy.

Another hopeful fact is that officials of the hospital requested the investigations which have shown up its deficiencies. Conciousness of inadequacy is the first step toward improvement. We hope that the hospital authorities will be relentless in pursuit of the new facilities recommended and flexible enough to adopt the progressive methods of treatment that have proved their worth elsewhere.

Navy Promotions

It is reassuring to us to note that criticisms of the armed services occasionally expressed by this newspaper are echoed by reserve officers who have the prestige of the Army and the Navy very much at heart. Some of these reservists, through a new unofficial publication which we welcome heartily, the Army and Navy Bulletin, have made the striking charge recently that selection of Navy officers for flag rank—that is, for positions of rear admiral or higher—has taken on some aspects of "a popularity contest where the votes determine the winner." The assertion is given so much color by other aspects of naval procedure and outlook that it cannot be lightly dismissed. The men who make it are certainly in a position to know what they are talking about. They could name names, as we could.

Flag officers ought to be selected, of course, strictly on the basis of a systematic analysis of their records of performance. When social graces and connections are taken into account, even unconsciously, the merit system of promotion is bound to go by the board. And an even more dangerous consequence is almost certain to develop. Officers dependent for advancement upon the affection or esteem of their superiors are likely to be wary indeed of expressing any doubt that everything is as it should be in the best of all possible naval worlds. The virility of any service stems from its capacity for internal criticism—from freedom throughout the hierarchy to suggest changes in accepted ways of doing things and to find fault with maladministration above. Any promotion system which lends encouragement to sycophancy is certain to produce sterility. Flag rank should go to men who have earned the respect, but not necessarily the liking, of the admirals under whom they have served.

Rebuke To Congress

Two long years have passed since the House of Representatives, in a gesture of petty vindictiveness, passed a law banning three individuals by name from employment in the Federal Government. The Court of Claims of the United States has now ruled that this congressional action was unconstitutional—as President Roosevelt, Secretary Ickes, Attorney General Biddle and others, including this newspaper, asserted it to be at the time. We characterized the action of the House, in which the Senate reluctantly concurred, as being "in the nature of a bill of attainder and of a gross usurpation of executive authority." In retrospect, it seems no less ugly to us today.

Two years is a long time. Though the Court of Claims at this late date has found the action of Congress to be invalid, the Federal Government has long since lost the services of the three able men subjected to this un-American proscription. The men themselves—Prof. Robert Morss Lovett, Dr. Goodwin B. Watson and William E. Dodd—have had to endure an unwarranted smirch upon their reputations. And in the midst of war they were deprived of the right that belonged to every loyal citizen to serve their country. This was harsh punishment indeed for men who had done nothing more than to express opinions which were distasteful to certain members of Congress. We believe that they are entitled to honorable amends from the body guilty of inflicting upon them so grave an injustice.

Congress now has the privilege of appealing to the Supreme Court for a review of the unanimous decision by the Court of Claims. We hope that it will avail itself of this privilege. For it is of the very first importance that the issue lying behind the Watson, Dodd, Lovett cases be settled finally and definitively. The tactics pursued by Congress in proscribing these men were a travesty on the judicial processes which have enabled Americans to think of themselves as free men. They were an assault upon the tripartite character of the Federal Government established by the Constitution. They should never be pursued again.

Time And Mr. Attlee

Mr. Churchill bids us beware of a state of mind in our attitude toward foreign nations. He had Russia in mind. We said the same thing after the failure of the London Conference when we warned against the crystallization of specific attitudes with hostility. From Europe there comes ample news to warrant the warning. It is reported that most of Europe is divided between pro-American and pro-Russian schools; obversely, anti-American and anti-Russian. In the opinion of many returning travelers, these lines have already been drawn in most countries. The situation has become so bad within Germany, we are told, that an American or a Briton who speaks up for Russia is looked at askance, as if he were suffering from some ideological plague. In the Balkans the stand that other people are taking for us amounts to an encouragement of Russophobia. In a speech after Mr. Churchill's Mr. Bevin, who mistakes truculence for toughness, did not discourage this tendency.

Time for the next 20 years may be likened to a loan at a bank which we may invest wisely in the insurance of peace or fritter away prodigally on the way to war. There are several investment opportunities available to the United States as well as to the Soviet Union which will yield a permanent dividend of peace. It is obvious that a world which, power-wise, is rapidly becoming a Russo-American condominium is an unsafe place to live in. We must build up power elsewhere. Power, like prosperity, must be shared in our own as well as the world's security. The chief means of sharing power lies in the strengthening of world organization, particularly the UNO. It can be strengthened only by instigating drafts on national power and national sovereignty for the common welfare. A beginning can be made by dealing with the atom bomb in universal terms. The secret of the universe must be approached as a problem for the universe, and we trust Prime Minister Attlee, whose arrival today we welcome, will have that approach.

Another way of sharing power is to do our part in restoring the British economy. In two wars we have decided that the preservation of Britain is essential to our own American security. The questions arise now: Is it immaterial to us in what condition Britain is preserved? As a war-lamed power? As a museum piece? Or as a going concern, in a position thriving enough to aid us in rehabilitating the world? We think that it is to our interest that this last question should be answered in the affirmative. The need is as much political as economic in terms of world revival and world security.

The British-American conference which is now to be enlarged by the arrival of Mr. Attlee offers the opportunity. The economic world is at present becalmed, awaiting the outcome of the talks. We could put Britain so firmly on her feet that the status would be obvious to the entire world and consequently would reactivate the trading world. We need an economic ally in the pressing and giant task of world reconstruction. Real aid to Britain would yield geometrical returns in assistance to the stricken world. If we treat the problem in strictly businesslike terms, as simply a creditor-debtor arrangement, the United States would confirm itself as premier power-holder economically and cosharer with Russia of political power. That is not, we repeat, a comfortable position to be in, it is indeed a dangerous position.

These are the means of shifting the world off the dead center of a Russo-American combination which is now in stalemate. There are no other available than to be constructive and dynamic in the UNO and to aid the British to be equally dynamic and constructive in world rehabilitation. They call for a forward view and a wide survey in our leadership. If we are not large-minded now, we shall have to be large-minded later, though we might then have wasted a lot of our capital in the bank of time. In the meantime, every American on service abroad, including American officers in armies of occupation, should be told individually to prevent the crystallization of the Russo vs. American lines which foreigners are drawing as if the world were already in an incipient contest. That is no way of using our bank loan. Gadarene swine adopted it, and see where it led them—down a steep place into the sea of destruction.

Elephantine Outlook

The current issue of the Republican News, official organ of the national committee, is just to hand, and under the caption, "It's Fun to Be President," we note a front-page article set in parallel columns titled "Truman's 'My Day,'" on the one hand and "A Citizen's Diary" on the other. The publication endeavors to show—we suppose—that Mr. Truman is frittering away his time while the Nation burns.

This is meant to be comical, so we'll give you a sample in order to let you share in the elephantine mirth. The GOP version of the President's diary for Saturday, October 6, starts off as follows: "Motored to Berryville, Va., for Bennett Clark's marriage to Actress Violet Heming. Took part as best man. Back to Capital where three Government planes formed air party for a Missouri weekend to see Caruthersville County Fair. Smooth trip; slept and played poker . . ." Since the imaginary citizen whose diary for the same day appears contiguously is concerned exclusively with strike problems, we take it that the GOP publicists are trying to prove that Mr. Truman's time is occupied exclusively with trivia. All that they have accomplished, however, so far as we can see, is to disparage as trivial three revered and firmly established American institutions, marriage, county fairs and poker.

Morally, this is, perhaps, peg above the party's recent efforts to prove that the late President Roosevelt deliberately invited the Japanese to destroy the United States Navy at Pearl Harbor. But, politically, it is unlikely to prove any more effective for the simple reason that it is equally nonsensical. Whatever Mr. Truman's shortcomings, he has shown no lack of conscientiousness about his job. The GOP is likely to be no more successful in the future than it has been throughout the past decade if it persists in sterile negation and a juvenile carrying of the argument ad hominem. The American people are looking for an affirmative program.

Miracle Man

James M. Curley, three times Mayor of Boston, once Governor of Massachusetts and now serving a fourth term in the United States House of Representatives, has made a triumphant bid for a fourth term as mayor of his native city. His joy may be somewhat tempered by the knowledge that he must stand trial two weeks hence on charges of using the mails to defraud in connection with an alleged war contracts racket. But at least he has the consolation of knowing that none of the things he has done outside the law or has been suspected of doing could for long alienate those faithful Bostonians who have returned him to public office again and again. Curley, in national estimation, will now join the bean and the cod in the local dietary, though the mixture, we fancy, would not have been very palatable to the rugged individualists of Boston's ancient vintage, and is decidedly not for export.

Mr. Curley's repeated comebacks, following periods of political extinction, seem to the uninitiated to resemble miracles of resurrection. But that may be because we have no first-hand knowledge of the personal charms of this perpetual candidate for office and have never heard his "mellifluous baritone voice" raised in denunciation of foes and in praise of friends. Perhaps we may still enjoy that privilege without leaving Washington. For if Boston's newly elected mayor emerges victorious from his latest brush with the law, he will be at liberty to resume his seat in the House. We have his assurance, too, that he intends to serve in Congress at least until he takes office as mayor, "and probably longer." In the latter event, it would be interesting to know whether Congressman Curley proposes to draw two salaries while holding down both offices. Old customs die hard, and this may be one of them. If, however, a choice has to be made, will the taxpayers of Boston or the Federal taxpayers be called upon to support him? Surely the honor is Boston's.

LET US PRAY

The sky, now, rumbles and glowers and rages and threatens
With all that it means to do,
And I might be troubled and anxious, were I not certain
Of the sky's enduring blue:
The loving and lovely, the graciously studded, by night,
With grave and beneficent stars,
And this that I hear is the clashing of humors and vapors
In empty and imbecile wars.

Let us pray that Heaven, in looking on earth, in turn,
May be as patient with men,
And not too sickened and sad and despairing, withal,
To forgive us—again.

Washington Calling

Confusion In Uniform

IN THIS PERIOD of drift, when our military strength is being so rapidly dissipated, the team of military commanders who won the war is still in control.

They are not there because they want to be. There is, in fact, acute embarrassment at making decisions for the long future.

Other admirals and other generals will have the responsibility for that long future, and the men now in office should not commit them to a course which may be irrevocable. That is the feeling, particularly, within the Army.

Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, and Gen. Brehon Somervell, Chief of Supply, are both anxious to retire. They want to turn over the controls to younger men who can begin to make long-term plans.

TO PUT IT in over-simple terms, it is as though the senior members of a winning football team were to stay on after the last and victorious game of the season, trying to plan for a campaign in which they would not even have a part. It is an awkward and embarrassing situation contributing to the demoralization resulting from our breakneck demobilization.

One of the chief reasons for this difficult situation is the political log jam over unification of the services. The controversy is creating unprecedented bitterness and diversiveness between the services.

General Marshall and Gen. H. H. Arnold, Chief of Air, were astonished to read a statement by Assistant Secretary of Navy H. Struve Hensel that the Joint Chiefs of Staff had unanimously recommended a delay in unification of the armed forces. At their request, Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson gave out a statement saying that Hensel was "mistaken."

In the meantime, the powerful Navy lobby is moving full steam ahead. One member of Congress reported recently that he had received more than a thousand letters opposing unification, while he had received only 40 letters in favor.

"I'm in favor of unification," he said. "And I know that those letters in opposition were mostly inspired. But it makes it hard for me, nevertheless, when the balance is so strong the other way."

If merely the rank and prestige of a few admirals and a few generals were involved, this would not matter very much. It would be just another bureaucratic Washington row, dressed up in fancy uniforms. But our national security and our capacity to pay for reasonable security in line with our responsibilities in the world are at stake. No less than that! The present period of drift and controversy makes an orderly transition all but impossible.

IN THIS COLUMN it was reported, the other day, that not a single combat unit of the Army Air Forces could fly a tactical mission today because the units had been so stripped by the point system of men with skill and experience. The long future of the Air Forces is also being jeopardized.

The AAF asked to be allowed to keep, out of wartime appropriations, 245 million dollars for research and experimentation. This was cut to 115 million dollars. The Navy Bureau of Aeronautics asked for 148 million dollars for the same purpose and got 61 million dollars.

Aircraft production was cut back from 96,379 units in 1944 to 2200 in 1946. In other words, only 2 per cent of our productive power will be left. The Air Coordinating Committee, consisting of Assistant Secretaries of State, Commerce, Navy, War and the chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, issued a warning against this drastic cutback.

By contrast, Britain has just made available millions of pounds for a great aeronautical research center near Bedford. And a British jet plane set an official world air speed record of 606 miles an hour.

On Capitol Hill they are squabbling over Pearl Harbor, trying to find a scapegoat to make political medicine. What a spectacle of futility at the very time they are preparing the way for another and more terrible Pearl Harbor!

ATC Releases

A recent proposal of General Marshall outlining the future demobilization procedure for the Army gave the morale of men at this base a much needed "shot in the arm." Unfortunately, this morale "boost" was short lived.

Almost a month has elapsed since 80-point men were declared eligible, and the India-China Division, Air Transport Command, has failed, as yet, to act. In this, as in all other phases of demobilization, the command has shown a definite reluctance to release men.

Myself and the men over here with me are beginning to wonder if the Air Transport Command is part of the Army. We are curious, too, as to the possible truth in the rumor that the ATC will "hold the fort" until civilian airlines can take over their routes. If such rumor has any foundation, we here can understand, but not condone the reluctance of the Air Transport Command to participate in the demobilization program.

UNO And Atom Bomb

By Barnet Nover

Captain Stassen's Proposal

IN ARTICLE 26 of the United Nations Charter the Security Council is given the responsibility for formulating," with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee referred to in Article 47, plans to be submitted to the members of the United Nations for the establishment of a system for the regulation of armaments."

This vague clause, Capt. Harold Stassen, former Governor of Minnesota and one of the American delegates at the San Francisco Conference, would radically amend and strengthen. His purpose would be to make the United Nations a more effective instrument of international peace in this day of atomic power.

With this purpose no one can quarrel. The atom bomb that fell on Hiroshima last August made the United Nations Organization, in certain important aspects, obsolescent if not obsolete. But whether Captain Stassen's proposal would sufficiently overhaul the machinery of the new world organization to bring it in line with the needs of the atomic age is very much open to question.

CAPTAIN STASSEN'S proposal consists of four parts.

In the first place, he would amend Article 26 so as to prohibit the manufacture of atomic bombs by any nation.

Second, he would make the manufacture or possession of such a bomb "a crime against mankind."

Third, he would empower the Security Council to establish an atomic commission composed of distinguished scientists. This body would have the "power and the duty to thoroughly inspect all nations, including our own, to ascertain the fulfillment of the foregoing Charter provisions."

The commission would also be the agency with which every person who is seeking to engage in any nuclear or atomic research must register. After registering, however, any scientist would be entirely free to carry on scientific research and to publish his results to the world.

Fourth, Captain Stassen would establish and maintain under the Security Council's aegis a small United Nations air force manned by volunteers from the United Nations, financed by a tax on international travel and furnished with a small number of atomic bombs produced in the United States before the ban on atomic bomb production is clamped down.

CAPTAIN STASSEN has very wisely refrained from advancing his proposal as a certain cure-all for the mental ills and political dangers produced by the sudden advent of the atomic age. He merely offers it as a basis of discussion.

As such it is worth careful consideration, particularly since in the speech in which Captain Stassen advanced his plan the arguments against both alternative policies of secrecy and suppression, on the one hand, and giving the secret of the atomic bomb to all comers are brilliantly set forth.

A policy of secrecy, he said, would mean restricting the freedom of science in America for the first time in peace, and thus involve a departure from the basic liberty and openness of science "which has led in the past to our superb scientific achievements."

On the other hand, Captain Stassen points out that "under the give-away alternative, there would be no guarantee of reciprocal openness of information. We would, in effect, be increasing the armament of every other individual United Nation."

At the same time, the Stassen proposal has the great merit of operating within the orbit of existing institutions, the United Nations Organization in particular.

The atomic bomb has made the need of world government peremptory. But that does not mean that we are going to have a world government tomorrow or the day after tomorrow or next week or next year. For the time being we have to work with what we have, making such changes in the existing structure as are both necessary and feasible.

IT IS, HOWEVER, precisely at this point that Captain Stassen's plan falls short of adequacy.

Suppose all the things he recommends came to pass. That would mean that every nation would be committed not to manufacture or possess atomic bombs and at the same time permit the inspection by the UNO Atomic Commission of every plant, factory and laboratory working in the field of nuclear or atomic physics.

So far so good. But suppose a year after Article 26 of the Charter were amended, or five years or ten years later, some nation, let us call it Nation A, decides to put impediments in the way of the Atomic Commission's inspectors. It would then be a reasonable assumption that Nation A is seeking to avoid the prohibitions against manufacturing of atomic bombs and is thus contemplating a "crime against mankind." But would that development automatically lead to action by the United Nations air force against Nation A?

Captain Stassen does not make the point clear, but presumably the United Nations air force would be subject to the authority of the Security Council. Yet the Security Council could not act against a nation manufacturing an atomic bomb if that nation happens to belong to the "Big Five" and thus possesses a veto against sanctions.

The first essential step that must be taken to bring UNO in line with the imperative needs of the world situation at this juncture is to do away with the veto. As long as it remains part of the Charter the problem of internationalizing atomic power will remain unsolvable.

Italian Reparations

Should the Russians' 300 million dollars reparation bill demanded of Italy go through it would leave in its wake an economic chaos parallel to the condition which once resulted in the Fascists' climb to power. Not only is Italy unprepared to meet these demands but conditions have become so serious that the Italian people are trying to prepare for one of the darkest winters in their history. The Anglo-American recommendation for the abrogation of the armistice terms early recognized the seriousness of the situation. Their proposal has been subsequently refused by the Russians.

Out of chaos comes the psychological need for a systematized order foreign to the democratic way. It has been evident that instability, both economic and political, has resulted in a leftist trend throughout the world. America has hoped that, under a democratic system, private capital would be made to flourish. Prevailing conditions indicate that this hope is a long way from realization. The Russian reparation proposal would irreparably damage these dreams. Well-founded fears have been voiced that this new demand would result in a left-wing surge to power. Whether this is the Russian intention or not, the decision of this issue will largely decide whether the Communistic organization in Italy is a going concern or not.

79-Hour Week

I wish to clarify and amplify your release of November 2 concerning the refusal of conscientious objectors assigned to work at Eastern State Hospital, Williamsburg, Va., to work a 79-hour week. The 79-hour week would consist of the former six working days of 12 hours each (7 p. m. until 7 a. m.) plus midnight to 7 a. m. on the seventh day. The former schedule was made feasible by the use of two "roving" night men who enabled each worker to have a full night off once a week. Dr. Joseph E. Barrett, superintendent, has ordered these positions of roving night men curtailed.

In addition, much valuable propthe objectors give the following reasons: (1) only one man is freed for day duty because the relief from 7 p. m. to midnight must be provided by the day men; (2) it means that during the nine weeks a man is scheduled for night work he would be unable to have a full day off; (3) there was an excess man assigned to work on the hospital farm who could be assigned to day duty; (4) a man assigned to the occupational therapy department might be transferred to ward work; (5) it establishes a bad precedent for working conditions for regular, i. e. nonconscientious-objector, employes and would slow down applications for hospital jobs and hence aggravate rather than solve the problem of inadequate ward coverage.

The unit of conscientious objectors assigned to this mental hospital has provided practically the entire employe staff caring for the male patients for three years since former employes left because of the draft or to obtain better paying and more desirable jobs elsewhere.

Wage-Price Solution

In approaching the current wage-price crisis there seems to be one possible solution that has been largely overlooked. This solution would enable a wage rise without a decrease in profits or a price increase. Only the substitution of one form of taxation for a fairer one is necessary.

Independent tax experts agree that the corporate income tax (not the undistributed profits tax) is not sound economically. It does not tax according to the ability of the individual to pay. All taxes are ultimately paid by individuals, and the corporate income tax is paid by the consumer in the form of higher prices or by the worker in the form of lower wages. The personal income tax, on the other hand, is based directly upon the individual's ability to pay.

Let us remove the corporate income tax. The funds set aside for this tax could be paid out to labor in higher wages. Management could have no conceivable argument against this since profits would not be affected. The Government revenue would be reduced owing to the fact that the added amount paid in personal income tax would not offset the revenue from the corporate tax. To meet this, however, Congress need not cut the personal income tax as much as they are now considering doing.

Japanese Labor

THE WELFARE MINISTRY in Japan is allegedly "contemplating the legalization of labor unions." While this contemplation goes on, some interesting voices are being raised in domestic Japanese broadcasts intercepted by the FCC.

"Various quarters," says Radio Tokyo, are requesting the government to "act promptly and aggressively, with all the forces at its command . . . to anticipate the arrival of a new era among the ranks of Japanese laborers." The idea is that if the government takes the initiative in sponsoring the union movement, the government will also be able to control it. And thus part of the aims of the occupation will be defeated.

THE "VARIOUS QUARTERS" were disturbed when 30 surviving leaders of the Nippon Labor Union—which was forcibly disbanded in 1937—recently came together to consider ways of organizing an industrial labor movement in Japan. Objectives of the group are a living wage for Japanese workers, guarantees against compulsory discharge, unemployment insurance, and Japanese membership in an international federation of labor unions.

A few days after this meeting, the attempts to "anticipate" trade unionism became evident. A conference was hurriedly called by 120 leaders of the All-Japan Laborers' Alliance; they stated their intention to establish craft union recruitment offices in the labor halls of Tokyo and other big cities. Indicative of this group's political thinking were the official policies which it laid down a week later in a "mass meeting": active defense of the monarchy and destruction of the Communist Party.

Despite the attempts to thwart development of trade unionism, and despite the almost total lack of effective leadership, there are symptoms that Japanese workers are determined to organize into groups of their own choosing.

The strongest trade union in prewar Japan was that of the Tokyo transport workers. This union will be one of the first to reorganize, and if it is permitted free growth it may well play an important role in the reconstruction of Tokyo.

Unionization is spreading swiftly to other crafts. Radio workers are trying to organize around demands for democratization of broadcast management and dismissal of war-active high officials. Newspaper employes are holding rallies preliminary to organization, which will take place when the Shidehara government gets around to legalizing trade unions. Editorial staffs have held mass meetings which called for thorough investigation of war criminals and the resignation of publishers, directors and bureau chiefs who ran the nation's big papers during the war.

Strikes have actually been called, and not only by the Korean and Chinese laborers who were imported during the war to work in Japan's coal mines. Three hundred workers of the Tsurumi Shipbuilding Corporation went on strike on October 26, in protest against the dismissal of 200 employe leaders.

This first stirring among Japanese workers is important, mainly because they have never in history had a voice in influencing national policy. If their beginning struggle is thwarted—either by government interference or by inter-group friction—it seems safe to predict that genuine trade unionism will cease entirely when the occupation forces leave. If the labor movement does not achieve real strength by that time, the militarist hoodlums will almost certainly try to crush it as soon as the protection afforded by Allied troops is withdrawn.

THE TRAGIC HISTORY of Japan's labor movement does not justify an optimistic prognosis of its future role. During World War I trade unionism grew rapidly in Japan, but by 1923 it was being broken with the time-tested weapons of prison cell, torture, bludgeon, and gun.

During the depression, working days were lengthened and wages were forced still lower. Mass arrests occurred on a scale unprecedented even for Japan. Fascist organizations sprang up with official sanction and terrorized working-class districts. Labor leaders went underground. Many of them were killed, or died of starvation in prison.

Japan's militarist ambitions might not have been so successful if its labor movement had not been completely smashed. The converse of this may be that if Japanese workers are given genuine freedom of organization, if they can no longer be conscripted into the army, if they can eventually achieve employment and wage standards high enough to purchase the goods which they produce, the recrudescence of fascism in Japan will be made difficult. The strength of Western democratic thought among these people should certainly not be exaggerated, but the progressive potential is there and waiting to be called forth.

Let Citizens Decide

What would people think about a vote on that "one world?" Sovereign nations won't commit suicide. We made them, and we can't trust them with atom bombs. Let's adopt a world constitution in a world-wide referendum. Let the UNO draw it up, to be ratified by the individually voting United Nations citizens. RUTH PARKS.

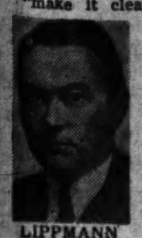
Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Mr. Attlee's Visit



LIPPMANN

BEFORE MR. ATTLEE left London to come to Washington, Mr. Churchill advised him to "make it clear to the United States that we will march at their side in the cause that President Truman has defined, that we will add our strength to their strength. . . . If everything else fails, which we must not admit, here is the best chance of survival."

Mr. Churchill would be the first to realize how unready the United States is to make a considered response if Mr. Attlee makes such a declaration of British intention. It is necessary to say this. No one will imagine, let us hope, that it is said in order to prevent British-American understanding and collaboration. It must be said in order to prevent misunderstanding which could be disastrous.

THE CRUX OF the American difficulty is that in all the regions of the world where there is dangerous international disorder—excepting only in China—the British interest is older, more direct, more deeply vested, than is the American. In Germany, in Eastern Europe, in the Balkans, in the Mediterranean, in the Middle East and throughout Southern Asia, and the adjacent colonial islands, the real question is not whether Great Britain will march at our side. The initiative, and the critical responsibility, are British, and the question at bottom is whether we shall march at Britain's side, or find ways, which are as yet unexplored and undeveloped, of marching side by side. The answer we are able to find to this question will almost certainly determine whether, in Mr. Churchill's words, "everything else fails," that is to say whether the English-speaking nations become aligned together in an uncontrollable conflict with the Soviet Union in Europe and Asia.

It is not likely that Mr. Attlee and Mr. Truman will have the time to examine the problem profoundly. They will do well if in their conversations they go deeply enough into it to have made each other aware, before they separate, that this is the problem of Anglo-American relations. It is not the problem of the United States and the British Commonwealth; there is no fundamental problem in our relations with the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa. In peace and in war we are bound to be partners and Allies. The problem is in the relations of the United States to the British Empire and to the spheres of influence and interest—for example the Balkans—within which the Empire as such is defended and maintained.

We certainly do not now know how to solve this problem, and there is little reason to think that the British now know how to solve it.

THE PROBLEM is peculiarly difficult because Great Britain is no longer strong enough to exercise her political authority without our support, and we are not now equipped to share her authority. We are not equipped in the obvious sense that we simply do not yet have enough diplomats who can form independent and objective judgments in these disputed regions, which are so remote from our traditional interests. But there is a deeper sense in which we are not equipped to collaborate on equal terms with the British. It is that their diplomats and political agents on the spot have immediate administrative responsibility for what goes on in—say Greece, Syria, Palestine—and very often, indeed oftener than not, what we call British policy consists in London having no choice but to back up, as we have to back up General Wedemeyer in China, what has already been made an accomplished fact thousands of miles from London.

It is evident that the United States cannot be content just to back up London because London has no choice but to back up its diplomatic agents.

I AM WELL aware that to expound the difficulty, as Americans see it, is not to solve it. But it is much better than to pretend it does not exist, and thus to mislead ourselves and everyone else. Not every problem can be solved when it first arises. There are problems which are not ripe for solution, and this is almost certainly one of them. To know that much is to know something more than not to know anything at all.

SINCE THE DEATH of President Roosevelt, and to a considerable extent in the last year when his health was failing so rapidly, the world has paid a heavy price for the fact that British and American statesmen have taken such a superficial view of the terms and conditions under which they can collaborate in world affairs.

For it was superficial to gloss over the basic fact that Great Britain is over-extended in relation to her power and that this deficiency cannot be remedied by an infusion of American power. Neither in dealing with the Russians nor with the great masses of the dependent people of Southern Asia has that been a workable formula. It causes the British to assume a support that will not in fact be given. It causes us to meddle in matters of which we cannot deal with the consequences. And it raises a tremendous screen of secondary disputes which prevents us from coming to grips directly with the Russians on the issues of absolutely vital importance.

IN FORMER DAYS it would have been unseemly to raise such questions on the eve of a visit by the Prime Minister. But we have to talk about these matters with the British; they are too urgent to be fobbed off politely. Yet we can talk about them without fear. For nothing can really disrupt the bonds which bind us together in a common destiny. In fact we discuss our weaknesses and our failings as well as our interests and our ideals because nothing vitally important that is British or American is any longer a wholly external affair to either people.

Facts About France

Communication From Ex-Premier

YOU PRINTED in The Post of November 8 a dispatch from Mr. Daniel de Luce, revealing a recently discovered German document of great historical value. It helps to clear up a point which has given rise to heated controversies.

This document consists of the recorded telephone talks of Goering during the period of the Anschluss, between March 10 and 13, when German troops were invading Austria.

GOERING stated that the German services had decoded French diplomatic dispatches which gave proof of the French decision to oppose the German step, even at the risk of armed conflict, but that the French government had been stopped by the Italian and British governments' refusal to follow them.

Being the French Prime Minister of that time, I can tell you that the facts described by your correspondent from the German document are substantially correct.

Although we had resigned two days before, on March 10, for reasons of domestic and financial policy, our government put the army on the alert and contacted the cabinets of Rome and London and asked them to join us in a common action for which we were preparing ourselves.

It is quite true that Count Ciano declined even to see our Charge d'Affaires and that the British government decided that the military step contemplated by us was not possible.

I wish to correct De Luce's story only about a minor point. Speaking of these French steps, he ascribes them to Leon Blum's cabinet.

The Goering talk he writes about took place as he said, on Sunday, March 13, in the morning. This was the same day on which, a little before noon, I transmitted my powers to my successor. Consequently the diplomatic dispatches which were decoded by the Germans before that talk were indisputably those of my own government.

BUT SUCH A small fact is without importance for history. All French governments see as one when it is a question of international policy. Especially in that particular case, Leon Blum did not have views other than mine about the facts and did not contemplate, any more than I did, undertaking an isolated military action.

What is essential is that the truth of the matter, which has been darkened until now by unfair polemics, has been finally, thanks to you, brought to full light.

Demobilization of Aleutian, Alaskan Bases Is Nearly Over

By George Connery
Post Staff Writer.

Adak, Aleutians, Nov. 9.—Demobilization in the Aleutians and Alaska appears to mean just that.

The show is very nearly over on America's northernmost Pacific line.

Dutch Harbor, where the Japs struck in 1942 and sent a chill down the entire North American continent, in a few months will be turned over to a crew of about 20 men and one officer.

Here at Adak 6000 men were poised for a blow against Japan a few months ago. Ready to carry them in and support them were 70 ships, including seven aircraft carriers.

Today what movement there is goes in the other direction.

Adak, with Kodiak, will remain an "operational status" base, while Attu, from which bombing of the Kuriles was launched, will be kept in a "maintenance status," under the guardianship of something fewer than 400 men. Dutch Harbor, completely buttoned up, will be in "storage status."

According to Rear Admiral Ralph Wood, commander of the Seventeenth Naval District, this is the military situation in Alaska and the Aleutians.

In the first two month after V J-Day the seventeenth district sent back to the States for separation 24 per cent of its personel, a far higher rate then for the Navy as a whole.

Now the figure is about 30 per cent, with every effort being made to step up, not retard, discharges.

"In carrying out my orders," Wood said, "if the men have the points I get them on their way as fast as I can. I suppose we're doing a little better than some of the others, because we're better fixed for shipping and planes and have less distance to send them.

"For example, we fly men back from Kodiak to Seattle in eight hours. That's not like Luzon."

The admiral had no complaints, just noted the situation. "My team is hot," he said, "when officers get the points they go, no matter how valuable they are. That's the way it's put up to me, and I'm doing it. But I think everyone should note what's happening."

Commander Crutchfield Adair, formerly of Norfolk, has the job of rolling up Dutch Harbor and putting it on the shelf for use "when and if." The crew will set up a map patrol schedule to have a look at least once every 24 hours at airfield and radar installations, power house, communication centers, and 75 buildings, including 7 loaded warehouses.

For the next two or three years, Adair estimates, things will be in about the same condition as they are now. After that, the weather will start taking its toll, and how soon Dutch Harbor could be put back in shape will be questionable.

The battle crew of watch will be on the alert for sabotage, but also will chase off prowlers and guard against fires. If some time in the future there is a sneak attack that gets far up the Aleutians, the men will just duck for a bomb shelter until its over. However, many of the key installations are bomb-proofed now.

Dutch Harbor, under the contemplated peacetime schedule is considered less important than either Kodiak or Adak although it guards the shortest shipping route into the Bering Sea. It has a submarine base, seaplane and land plane facilities, and is a surface ships operating base, able to repair small ships.

Emphasis will be on air at Kodiak while Adak has an excellent harbor, able to handle any task force likely to be used in this area.

Woman Awarded $15,000 Verdict In Transit Crash

Mrs. Maida L. Seline, 28, 3412 10th st. ne., a bakery clerk, yesterday won a $15,000 verdict from the Capital Transit Co. after medical witnesses said that injuries received in a bus-car accident may have impaired her normal child-bearing function.

Shoe Sale Minus Stamp Draws Fine

The comanagers of Lucky Joe's Shoe Store, 1310 7th st. nw., were fined $250 yesterday in Municipal Court on a charge of selling a pair of shoes without the exchange of a ration stamp on October 19, 11 days before rationing was suspended.

At the same time, the defendants, Irving and Max Rabinowitz, consented to District Court injunction requiring them to keep OPA price records.

The Gallup Poll

Public Found Anxious to End Labor-Management Strife

By George Gallup
Director of American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 9.—The American public is anxious to see some solution to current strife come out of the Labor-Management Conferences in the Nation's Capital.

In fact, the majority of people throughout the country are apparently at the point where they are willing to accept almost any reasonable proposal aimed at improving labor-management relations. Surveys just completed by the Institute across the Nation underline this fact. For example, a majority of voters are found favoring the idea of:

1. A law requiring employers and unions to take their differences to a Government arbitrator before a strike could be called in any industry.

2. A special court to which labor and management would be compelled to turn when a strike was threatened and whose decision would be accepted as final by both sides. This is along lines of a suggestion by Senior Federal United States District Court Judge John C. Knox.

3. Citizen boards on a community or area scale to try to solve labor-management disputes. The idea here is to reduce to a minimum the role of the Government. Personnel of the boards, according to one suggestion, would come from chambers of commerce, local labor unions, panels of the American Arbitration Association, state commissions of labor and civic and educational groups.

None of these three proposals necessarily provides the solution to labor-management difficulties, but replies to questioning on them reflects the extent to which the public is willing to go to bring an end to the current run of strikes and dissension, of which the average American is becoming weary.

The questions, asked in a series of separate surveys, with tabulations of replies:

"Would you favor a law requiring employers and unions to take their differences to a Government arbitrator before a strike could be called in any industry?"

Yes	79%
No	11
No opinion	10

"It has been suggested that the Government create special courts to handle labor disputes. When a strike is threatened, unions and employers would go before a special labor court to state their case and the decision of the court would be final. Would you favor or oppose setting up a special labor court."

Favor	70%
Oppose	16
No opinion	14

"It has been suggested that to settle some labor disputes, communities set up their own boards of persons from civic groups, industry and labor, to help the Government settle these differences. Do you think this would be a good idea or a poor one?"

Good idea	60%
Poor idea	20
No opinion	20

407 Win Service Discharges; Andrews Field Breaks Record

A total of 407 men have been discharged according to announcements received from separation centers yesterday.

Andrews Field, Md., announced that an all time high was reached at the air base Wednesday when 244 enlisted men and 42 officers were released. This is 86 more than the daily quota set three weeks ago and Lieut. Col. David Greenwald, commanding officer of the center said, "as the personnel of the center becomes more acquainted with their work, a larger number of dischargees will receive their papers here."

Returning Troops Arrive in U. S. Ports

Five Ships Land Servicemen From Overseas At Boston and Also at San Francisco

These names were telegraphed directly to The Washington Post by the Associated Press. There is no assurance that the list is correct, because it was compiled in Europe and at Pacific bases previous to embarkation, but officials said that the margin of error is slight. Relatives should not contact the port or The Washington Post for further information.

FIREMAN BADLY SCALDED—Delaying traffic for six hours on the Southern Railway main line, wreckage of locomotive is shown above after a northbound freight train sideswiped a switch engine Thursday night near Altavista, Va. Engineer W. G. Lloyd of Spencer, N. C., was killed; Fireman Walton L. Sisk was badly scalded and 50 cars were derailed

Orders Hold 1000 Soldiers Ready to Sail

Camp Patrick Henry, Va., Nov. 9 (AP).—Within the past 24 hours more than 1000 soldiers bound for overseas have been removed from ships at the Hampton Roads port of embarkation in Newport News and from trains bound for the docks, as they are no longer eligible for overseas duty, the Camp Patrick Henry public relations office reported today.

At 11 a. m. yesterday camp officials were informed that men with 22 months of service in the Army are no longer to be sent overseas. Loading of 5200 men on the Monticello had already begun, but camp officials quickly checked records and removed 626 enlisted men and 3 officers from the ship.

A group of 626 men and 3 officers was pulled off a train which was ready to leave camp Patrick Henry for the piers.

The trainloads of men bound for overseas left Fort Meade, Md., yesterday, for Newport News.

Screening of men bound for overseas was being continued at Patrick Henry today. However, soldiers at overseas replacement depots awaiting orders are being screened at those ports and only men who have left the depots for Newport News are being handled at Camp Patrick Henry.

The Business and Professional Women's Club of Prince Georges County will hold a special meeting at 8 p. m. Monday at the home of Mrs. Barton Marshall, 4210 Jefferson st., Hyattsville, Md. Miss Estelle Everett, State president of the organization, will speak.

Arab Official Hits Truman's Plea for Jews

Jerusalem, Nov. 9 (AP).—Dr. Izzat George Tannous, head of the Arab office in London, today criticized President Truman's suggestion that 100,000 Jews be admitted to Palestine, declaring the President "knows it cannot be done without the use of force."

"There is no better country in which to settle the Jewish humanitarian problem than America itself," he suggested in an interview.

"We feel that Palestine already has taken much more than its share of Jewish immigrants" Tannous continued, and what makes us even angrier is that these people who talk most about letting more Jews into Palestine are people who would never think of coming here to live."

The Arab people, he said, "fear American pressure, and fear there is a great Jewish influence on American Government."

Tannous, who recently returned to the Levant to attend his wife's funeral, said Palestine was not a Jewish problem but an Arab problem, "because we want peace and freedom in our country."

Riot Trials Begin

Cairo, Nov. 9 (AP).—Trials started today for persons accused in Tripolitania of rioting during anti-Jewish demonstrations in which more than 100 persons were killed.

British forces continued extensive security measures in the occupied Italian colony.

The city of Tripoli was quiet.

A communique said the city of Tripoli was quiet Wednesday and Thursday and that the British intended to use "all such force as may be necessary in the circumstances to restore peace and preserve order."

Area Parley to Honor State IOOF Leader

Warrenton, Va., Nov. 9 (AP).—Morris G. Smith, grand master of the Grand Lodge of Virginia, IOOF, Farmville, will be guest of honor at a booster meeting sponsored by the Charity Lodge, No. 27, IOOF, here Wednesday night. Thirty lodges from this section of Virginia will be represented at the meeting.

League Aide Named

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 9 (AP). Dean George B. Zehmer, director of the University of Virginia's extension division, today announced the appointment of Richard R. Fletcher, former director of first-year athletics at the university, as executive secretary of the Virginia High School Literary and Athletic League.

1000 Rabbis Coming With Palestine Plea

New York, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—More than 1000 orthodox Jewish rabbis will go to Washington Monday to present a four-point program for solution of the Palestine dispute and a protest against British refusal to allow free immigration to the Holy Land.

They will march from the Washington railroad station to the Capitol and the White House, in a demonstration designed to coincide with Prime Minister Attlee's conference with President Truman.

Rabbi Baruch Korff, cochairman of the demonstration, sponsored by the Zionist Revisionist Organization of America, said rabbis from all over the country would participate.

The four points which a 10-man delegation will present to the President are:

1. Immediate favorable action on the President's request to transfer 100,000 European Jews to Palestine.

2. Immediate repudiation of the British White Paper of 1939, barring Jews from Palestine.

3. Immediate formation of an Anglo-American commission to carry out the expressed intentions of the League of Nations mandate.

4. Immediate release of all Jewish patriots from Egyptian Sudan, Eritrea and other "concentration camps."

Korff, son of Grand Rabbi Jacob Israel Korff of Boston, said the delegation would be met at Washington's Union Station by more than 20 Congressmen.

They will march to the Capitol, where they will hold ritual prayers, he said. After they visit the White House, they will go by bus to the British Embassy, where Ambassador Lord Halifax will receive another delegation, he said.

Private Sleuth Charged As FBI Impersonator

Baltimore, Nov. 9 (AP).—Joseph T. Gayhardt, 39-year-old Baltimore private detective, was arrested by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents today on charges of impersonating an FBI man in his private investigations.

Gayhardt was brought before U. S. Commissioner James K. Cullen, who fixed bail at $1,000 and set a hearing on the case for next Wednesday.

FBI officials said Gayhardt was employed by the Annapolis Yacht Yard at Eastport, Md., to investigate theft of tools over a period of time.

FBI Probed 525,756 Draft Evasion Cases

By the Associated Press

The FBI has investigated 525,756 World War II draft violations, involving enough men to fill more than 30 infantry divisions—and new cases are being opened daily.

Investigations during the past five years resulted in 12,789 convictions. Sentences imposed to date total more than 34,000 years, with fines of $1,089,181. On September 30 the FBI had 15,727 pending draft delinquency cases. On November 11, 1918, there were 295,184.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, in an exclusive interview, outlined the FBI's current policy in enforcing the Selective Service Act:

"Under instructions issued by Attorney General Tom C. Clark, there has been no reduction in the intensity of Selective Service investigations.

"No new cases have been opened on persons 26 years of age and older since announcement of Japan's acceptance of the Potsdam ultimatum on August 14.

"However, reported violations prior to that time by persons between 26 and 38 years of age are receiving the same preferred attention which has been given Selective Service matters throughout the emergency period. New cases on registrants who have not reached their twenty-sixth birthday are being opened daily and investigations are being pressed."

Explaning that draft violations became possible on October 16, 1940, the first registration date, Hoover emphasized this point:

"From the inception of its work on Selective Service cases, the FBI has followed the policy of making men available to the armed services rather than putting them in jail for technical violations. Prosecutions generally have taken place in the aggravated cases."

He added: "the record of 12,789 convictions thus far compares with World War I, when more than 10,000 men were prosecuted for the single offense of failing to register. During World War I a total of 15,111 persons were convicted for slacker activities, but less than one-third went to prison and their terms averaged less than 30 days each.

"Violation of Selective Service laws now is a felony and the maximum penalty is 5 years in prison and a fine of $10,000."

Price-Control End by Feb. 15, Asked by NAM

Removal of all OPA price ceilings and rationing by February 15 and freedom of workers "to join or not to join a union" were advocated yesterday by the National Association of Manufacturers.

The NAM, which said it represented 80 per cent of the Nation's industrial concerns, presented its reconversion proposals to the House Committee on Postwar Planning, headed by Representative Colmer (D., Miss.).

Speaking for the association, John Airey, president of the Kings-Seeley Corp., Ann Arbor, Mich., said "industry finds itself caught in a squeeze resulting from the rise in costs of production and the restrictions upon prices."

The NAM made these other recommendations:

1. Discontinuance of wartime subsidies not later than the termination of price control.

2. Repeal of the excess profits tax on December 31, 1945, and a 20 per cent cut in corporate and individual income tax burdens. (The tax revision bill recently approved by Congress and signed by President Truman repeals the excess profits tax and reduces individual and corporate burdens, though not by 20 per cent.)

3. Foreign finance and foreign shipping should again be "trusted to individual enterprise.

4. Immediate clarification by Congress of the exact legal rights of veterans insofar as jobs in industry are concerned.

Airey said that if any price control regulation is to be continued it should be rent controls, except on new dwellings.

Truman Signs Bill to Reduce 1946 Taxes by $5,920,000,000

Federal tax cuts for everybody in 1946 are now an assured fact.

The White House announced yesterday that President Truman has signed the bill lopping an estimated $5,920,000,000 off the total of taxes that will be paid by individuals and corporations next year.

It will be the first general tax reduction since 1929, when President Hoover signed a "Christmas present" slash. Congressional sponsors of the cuts argued that they would stimulate business to such an extent that the treasury actually may not suffer a loss in revenue. The total cut is nearly one billion dollars larger than that recommended by the Government.

The legislation was signed by Mr. Truman Thursday night. Here is what it will do:

For individuals—Ends income tax paying entirely for 12 million persons who now pay only the three per cent normal tax levied on all net income above $500; assures 10 per cent or more reductions for persons making up to $50,000 a year, with smaller percentage cuts for those making more than $50,000; repeals the $5 a year use tax on automobiles, trucks and boats; holds at one per cent for 1946 the Social Security tax assessed against employes pay checks and employers payrolls.

For corporations—Repeals the wartime excess profits tax of 85.5 per cent.

For veterans—Forgives all tax levies on the wartime service pay of enlisted men and gives others three years in which which to settle taxes imposed on their wartime pay.

The estimate of a total $5,920,000,000 reduction is reached through these items: Individual cuts $2,644,000,000; corporation relief $3,136,000,000; repeal of automobile use tax 140 million dollars.

Withholding of individual income taxes from employes pay checks will be contiued. Anticipating approval of the legislation, the Treasury already has sent some of its 1946 tax forms to the printer.

Captain Ingersoll Is Commissioned

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 9, (AP).—Capt. Stuart H. Ingersoll, USN, commandant of midshipmen, received today his rear admiral's commission from Naval Academy Superintendent Vice Admiral Aubrey W. Fitch.

Ingersoll, who assumed his present post March 23, commanded the aircraft carrier Monterey in Pacific warfare, serving with Admirals Halsey and Spruance in the Third and Fifth Fleets.

The new admiral said he was one of 50 "old junior officers," having served on the old carrier Langley.

Ingersoll, an aviation training flight officer, began flight training at Pensacola, Fla., in 1925 and has remained in the air arm to this day. He has been active in experimental aviation on carriers and at one time served in the Naval Bureau of Aeronautics in Washington. He was born in Springfield, Mass., and holds the Navy Cross, two Legion of Merit medals, a Gold Star, and the Navy commendation ribbon.

Truman Congratulates Broadcasting Industry

President Truman congratulated the broadcasting industry yesterday on its twenty fifth birthday.

The President's message—Recognizing radio's achievement of its notable place in the lives of the American people and praising its war record—was contained in a letter to Justin Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters.

Half as Many Divorces in 1945 As the Number of Marriages

There were nearly half as many divorce suits as there were marriages in the first 10 months of this year in 30 of the Nation's largest cities, a United Press survey showed yesterday.

Judges, sociologists and psychologists expressed deep concern. They attributed the increase in divorce principally to wartime conditions but said the peak would not come for at least another year.

An unusually large number of suits were filed by men, principally servicemen charging their wives with unfaithfulness.

Blamed on War

Domestic Relations Judge Joy Ladd, Des Moines, Iowa, summarized the situation this way:

"It's due to war, separations and quick marriages."

Detroit District Judge William M. Cramer blamed the migration of workers from rural to war plant areas.

"Potential divorces, long brewing, reached the courts through increased earnings of husbands and wives," Cramer said.

Greedy women were criticized by Salt Lake City Judge J. Allan Crockett.

"Most of the war marriages were based, as far as the woman was concerned, upon the potential value of the insurance policies carried by men in service—and the glamor of being married to a potential war hero," Crockett said.

The survey showed that 111,000 divorce actions were taken in the 30 cities in the first 10 months of this year. This was nearly 20,000 more than in the same period in 1944.

Reno Records Only 6301

A total of 228,000 marriage licenses were issued. The number of weddings was expected to continue increasing, but not in proportion to the divorce rise.

Reno, Nev., which claims to be the "divorce capital of the world," recorded only 6301 divorces. It ran behind Chicago, with 16,000; Detroit, with more than 13,000; Houston, Tex., with nearly 8000 and Dallas, with 6500.

New York, the Nation's largest city, reported 3000 matrimonial court cases, 1900 of them divorce suits.

Candle Power

A TRIBUTE TO THE Electric Light & Power Industry

ONE OF THE WONDERS of our youth was a fabulous light which transformed the corner of Main and State streets into a flickering pool of daylight. A white spark sputtered across the gap between two sticks of carbon inside a glass globe, and was reputed to give forth light equal to hundreds of candles — maybe a thousand.

Several important corners had these lights, but the rest of the city remained in the restful obscurity of gaslight.

We were a bit skeptical at the time about that candle-power rating. A single candle was all right to go to bed by, and, with some discomfort and eye-strain, it even enabled one to read the dime novel kept hidden under the mattress; but it was difficult to visualize what a thousand candles would add up to—like imagining one hundred horses hitched to a wagon.

Shortly following the advent of the arc-light, wires were strung above the horse-car tracks and a bouncing little car slid back and forth over the three miles of track, with no visible means of propulsion. It was cooling on a hot evening to sit on the front seat and bowl along at ten miles an hour. Science was getting pretty wonderful.

Since those impressionable days, we have been less and less overcome by the impact of electrical progress. We just assumed that electricity could do anything—and weren't far wrong. Electric light in the home was soon just a gratifying convenience, though, it shook us up for a day or two to be able to start a car engine by touching a button. Radio startled us momentarily, as did a refrigerator that froze its own ice and appliances that made coffee and toast right on the table.

But we quickly adjusted ourselves to these marvels, developing a sort of Aladdin complex. We rubbed our magic lamp and shortly there was forthcoming another Genii to do the housework, wash the clothes and dishes, cook dinner and generally make living easier, more free and abundant, and happier.

Seemingly, this progressive contribution to living will go on and on. Television will soon be a commonplace way to see what's happening. Electronics are to revolutionize still further our way of life. Domesticated Radar will cause many changes.

That's the home side. But electricity has exerted a profound influence on industry. It drives machines, operates and controls tools, makes aluminum, sinks oil wells, runs railroad trains, and has taken most of the toil out of labor. Huge hydraulic turbine-generators transform the flow of rivers into light for an entire state; huge steam turbine-generators make power for farms and thousands of humming factories.

The men and women of the electrical industry, like all other creative forces, have been preoccupied in recent years with the grim though unavoidable task of winning a war. Progress and freedom are like that. They must be defended as well as achieved. These men and women somehow miraculously produced the extra power needed to drive our war industries—and without asking you or me to forego our house lights or other electrical conveniences. But now, happily, they can apply once more their genius to good living, not only in America but throughout the world. Allis-Chalmers salutes them.

In this editorial and on the air—Allis-Chalmers is proud to honor the Electric Light & Power Industry for its great contribution to American Good Living

After Tojo (above, with cigarette holder) finishes fish, rice, and soy beans, he tries to strike up conversation with his fellow war criminals. Nobody answers.

LIFE visits "dead man" Tojo

LIFE photographer takes 1st prison pictures of Japanese war criminals who regard Tojo as technically dead

On this page is a small piece of one slice of this week's LIFE.

Chief figure is Tojo, a man whom, for bungling both the war and his own suicide, his fellow prisoners in Omori prison camp seem to regard as technically already dead.

All but one prisoner refuses to walk, talk, or even eat at the same table with him. (Note how they ignore his attempts at conversation in illustration above.)

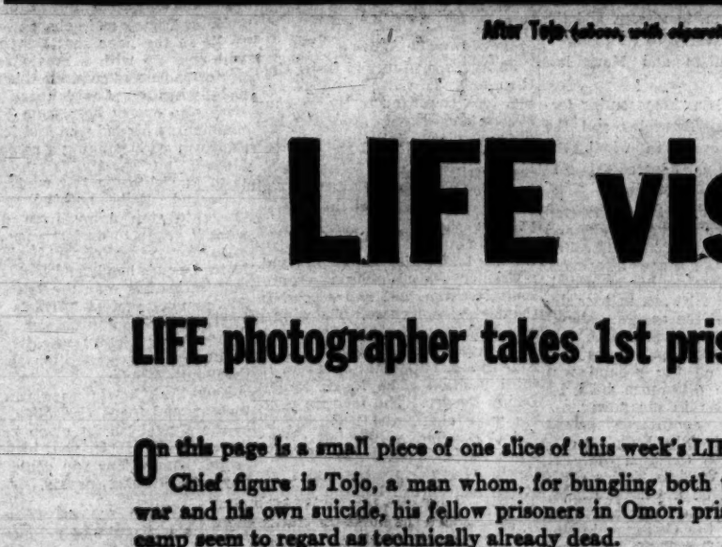
A vest-pocket sample of the first batch of pictures taken of the Jap war criminals now awaiting their trial in Omori prison camp, these photographs were made by LIFE photographer George Silk for a story which appears in the November 12 issue of LIFE.

George Silk is but one of 35 staff photographers and 200 others always on call who constantly seek out interesting and unusual stories for LIFE magazine.

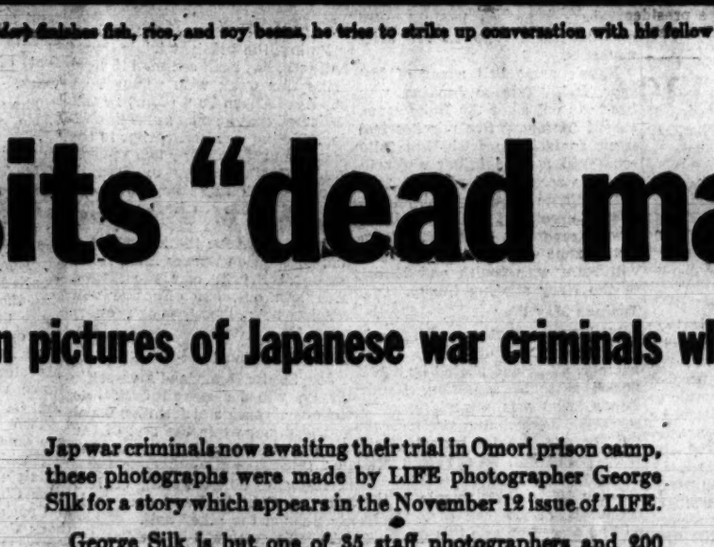
Such coverage is one of the reasons why, from the day the first LIFE was published in November, 1936, there have never been enough copies to meet the demand.

LIFE is increasing the supply. But interest in LIFE keeps increasing, too, as new stories never before released because of the war are made available . . . and as new vistas of America's future open up.

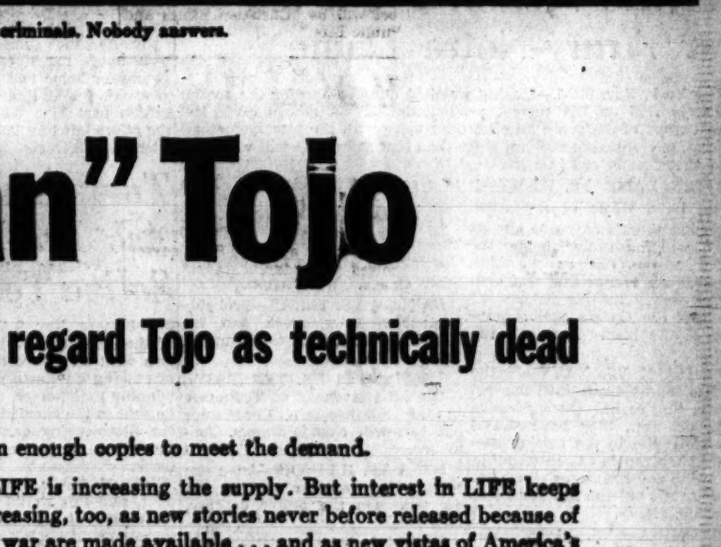
Even under present conditions LIFE has over 22,000,000 readers each issue. This is the biggest audience, week in and week out, in magazine history.



Only photographer in camp, Silk had bystander snap this of him, at LIFE's request. Black Dragon member Hashimoto in background is only prisoner who speaks to Tojo. These photos were released by LIFE for newspapers, too, through AP.



Writing his memoirs, Tojo spends his last days alone in his tiny cubicle at the very end of the empty barracks, awaiting his trial as a war-criminal. George Silk is one of 35 LIFE staff photographers, 21 of whom have been assigned to foreign news.



Shunned even by other Japs, the former Jap premier takes a miserable stroll by himself. United States prisoners of war were once kept in this camp. To the Japs' amusement, Americans promptly had filth, rats, flies, cleaned out for Jap prisoners.

Navy Slight Choice; Army Battles Irish

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

New York, Nov. 9.—Notre Dame returns tomorrow to Yankee Stadium, scene of the great Gaelic disaster of 1944. That was the day when the credulity of the Nation's football fans was taxed—a Notre Dame team was licked by Army, 59-to-0, the worst defeat in Irish football history.

POVICH

In Chicago, a radio announcer, broadcasting the day's scores on a 6:30 p. m. program, stammered and nearly choked as he glanced at his prepared script and started to announce: "Army, 59; Notre Dame, 0." Apologetically, he ad libbed, "There must be a typographical error, here, I'll have the correct score for you in a few moments."

He checked again with the wire services, and continued his broadcast. "A few moments ago, I reported the Army-Notre Dame score as 'Army, 59; Notre Dame, 0," he said. "Please continue your faith in this program. The score that I gave has since been confirmed."

Army's nine touchdowns that day produced the accusation that the West Pointers were pouring it on needlessly. The complaint did not come from Notre Dame, though. Coach Ed McKeever said, graciously enough: "Army was clicking with its T-formation and with our passes."

Notre Dame naturally enough, is aching for the chance to atone for that dreary game of last season, and on that basis it is an inverted situation. Usually it is Army that is prayerfully hoping for a turn in the fortunes of its rivalry with the Irish. For years Army was under the heel of Notre Dame's great teams of the Knute Rockne era, and wondering when it would ever walk off the field with a victory over the Irish.

The classic story they tell of the Notre Dame-Army series during the Rockne regime had its basis in the game wherein Notre Dame ran up a 28-0 score against Army in the first half, and Army never had possession of the ball out of its own territory. Rockne, feeling sorry for Coach Biff Jones of Army, walked over to Jones before the start of the second half and suggested, "We can cut these last two quarters to ten minutes each if you like, Biff. Nobody will know the difference."

Jones was not at all receptive to that plan. "I know it's a friendly offer, Knute," he said, "and you're beating our brains out. But we're paying you for a 60-minute football lesson and by gum, we want the full 60 minutes."

That Army team was not 59 points better than Notre Dame last year, but as in every game that is won by that margin, at least three or four touchdowns come cheaply. The Irish were forced to gamble throughout the last half, and were robbed of all their deception because of the necessity for throwing passes. They were literally playing into Army's hands.

Army is rated a 19-point favorite over the Irish tomorrow, but it's a vastly better Notre Dame team than the one in Yankee Stadium last year. Army has not yet encountered a team with the speed of Phil Colella and Terry Brennan, and in the secondary defense that pair will get the job of checking the long-distance dashes of Glenn Davis outside the tackles.

In the Navy game last week, Frank Ruggerio and Elmer Angsman proved backs of more drive than the Irish boasted last year, and they with Colella, are running threats that improve the efficiency of Frank Dancewicz's passes. The Army's defense will be getting its first potent test, and we think Army will need more than two touchdowns to win the game.

Army is rightfully enough the favorite. Doc Blanchard and Glenn Davis, playing on any team, would command respect. Operating in front of Army's good first-string line they are always breakaway threats. Blanchard does everything, including blocking and pass-receiving, and is certainly the finest line-backer of the year.

Somebody called Army's T-formation cream-smooth, but it helps a lot when you have such as Davis to whip around the outside and Blanchard to make the holes for himself if necessary. Army recommends itself as the only college team in recent years that could play the best of the pro clubs and win.

Notre Dame is not expected to waste too much time hitting the Army line, however. On the first play of the Navy game, Dancewicz opened up with a 40-yard pass to Skoglund, his good end. The Irish are prepared to play bold football tomorrow.

Picking the Winners, Maybe . . .

Terrific Action Predicted For Army-Notre Dame

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Having watched our average for the season shrink to .773 on 184 correct predictions and 54 misses after last week's effort of 32-10, we take off once more with the weekly football forecast, guaranteeing nothing more than that somebody will win each game that doesn't end in a tie.

NOTRE DAME VS. ARMY—It should be a whale of a football game, but there's only one choice. There will be some among the Kellys and the O'Briens who think the Irish can avenge that 59-0 licking last year. But this department will back the Cadets against anything in the land. Army all the way.

MICHIGAN VS. NAVY—If the Middies can hold out until the last minute, they're in. On successive weekends, now, they have staved off catastrophe in the closing seconds. Michigan has been stepping high, wide and handsome since losing to Army, but the fun must end sometime. Navy.

COLUMBIA VS. PENNSYLVANIA—The Lions might have gone undefeated if the schedulemakers hadn't slipped up here. They may score on the Quakers, which is more than Brown, Dartmouth, North Carolina and Princeton could do, but it won't be enough. Pennsylvania.

INDIANA VS. MINNESOTA—The Minnesota myth, like the football team, has taken an awful beating in the past two weeks. The Hoosiers are in sight of their first Big Ten title. Indiana.

TULSA VS. OKLAHOMA A. AND M.—What a shocker this should be, with the Missouri Valley title and probably a bowl bid hanging on the outcome. By a narrow margin, Oklahoma A. and M.

OHIO STATE VS. PITTSBURGH.—The Panthers are out to show their critics they're behind Coach Clark Shaughnessy. They'll be behind the Buckeyes, too. Ohio State.

S. M. U. VS. TEXAS A. AND M. There's a triple tie at the top of that dizzy Southwest Conference. This may help untangle it. Texas A. and M.

MISS. STATE VS. L. S. U.—With four impressive victories since losing to Alabama, the Tigers aren't stopping here. L. S. U.

CALIFORNIA VS. SOUTHERN CALIF.—Naval transfers have cut the Trojans down but they're still tough. Southern Calif.

NORTHWESTERN VS. WISCONSIN—A close one between two Western Conference "also-rans." The Wildcats are growing wilder. Northwestern.

GEORGIA TECH VS. TULANE—The 'Jackets have won and lost on alternating weekends all season. This is their week to win. Georgia Tech.

TEMPLE VS. PENN STATE—Another perfect record into the discard. The Owls have won six in a row, but it ends here. Penn State.

Oregon State VS. WASHINGTON—Their second meeting this year. The huskies won the first, 13-0. No other choice. Washington.

BAYLOR VS. TEXAS—Probably another narrow squeak, but the Longhorns look like the winners. Texas.

MISSISSIPPI VS. TENNESSEE—Ole Miss is ahead of Tennessee in the Southeastern Conference but this will change things. Tennessee.

IOWA VS. ILLINOIS—Iowa can reserve the tail-end spot in the big ten. On the better defense, Illinois.

OREGON VS. WASHINGTON STATE—Closer than that 26-13 triumph for Oregon in their first meeting this year. Still, Oregon.

ARKANSAS VS. RICE — The Owls are on the way up. Arkansas is on the way down. Rice.

GEORGIA VS. FLORIDA—The Bulldogs defeated Miami, which dumped Florida three weeks ago. That makes it easy. Georgia.

Hurrying over the remainder of the day's major games—Cornell over Colgate, Kings Point over Harvard, Yale over Brown, Lehigh over Nyu, Dartmouth over Princeton, Villanova over Boston College, Atlantic City Naval over CCNY, Rutgers over Lafayette, Michigan State over Great Lakes, Marquette over Kansas, Oklahoma over Iowa State, Kansas State over Nebraska, Purdus over Miami, Drake over Iowa Teachers, Auburn over Southwest Louisiana, Duke over North Carolina State, Chattanooga over Vanderbilt, North Carolina over William and Mary, West Virginia over Kentucky, Maryland over Virginia Military, Virginia over Richmond, Clemson over Virginia Tech, Texas Christian over Texas Tech, Denver over Colorado, A. and M., New Mexico over Utah, Utah State over Brigham Young and, on Sunday, St. Mary's over Fresno State and Holy Cross over Coast Guard.

Blair Topples Rockville, 33 to 7

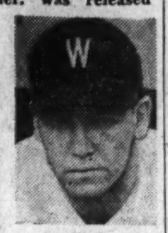
Blair High's footballers easily rolled up a 33-7 victory over Rockville yesterday at Meadowbrook.

End Ollie Brockdorff paced Blair's scoring, catching two touchdown passes from Parker Kirby and Eddie Baker. Billy Kyle and Bill Hasselbarth scored touchdowns. Baker broke loose for an 85-yard touchdown run.

Blair	0	13	13	7	—33
Rockville	0	0	0	7	— 7

Jake Early Gets Out of Army; Back With Nats

The Washington Senators' hopes for 1946 soared a notch higher yesterday as Jake Early, veteran catcher, was released from the Army at Fort Bragg, N. C.



Early

Early announced his release to Clark Griffith, Nat owner, in a letter asking for "my old job back."

"I told him he could have it," Griffith said, "though he probably won't sign a contract for a while yet. Glad to have him around!"

Early, whose military release came one day after that of Outfielder Stan Spence, said his first visit would be to his Kings Mountain, N. C., home. He is the fifth Nat to leave the service since the close of the American League season.

Fire Warden Jamaica Loser To Apache

Jamaica Race Track, N. Y., Nov. 9 (AP).—After winning seven straight races by outrunning every horse pitted against him, Mrs. Jake Freedman's big 6-year-old gelding, Fire Warden, had his remarkable streak broken today when he bowed by four lengths to William Woodward's Apache in the Enterprise Handicap.

The former plater, which ran with a $4000 claiming tag only last August before beginning his colorful climb, turned in his usual honest race while beating the Royal Stable's Cencerro by five lengths fof the place. Apache, one of the most noted sprinters in the country, was a $3.70 for $2 choice in this dash for all ages and flashed home in 1:10 4-5 with 23,506 fans looking on. The race was worth $6600 to the victor. Six horses started.

Apache, which carried 130 pounds to Fire Warden's 116, pulled up lame.

In their previous clash, which was the first race in which Fire Warden was pitted against real class, the Freedman flash had scored by a half length over Apache, weighted at 108 against tthe Belair Beauty's 126. So there was a four pound weight shift favoring Apache today.

This factor and the presence of the very fast juvenile filly Phantasy in the field, plus Apache's class and perfect ride from Jimmy Stout, combined to bring about Fire Warden's downfall.

Phantasy, after breaking just behind Apache and Fire Warden, raced head and head with the fleet Freedman colorbearer for more than a quarter mile while Stout wisely rated Apache third, daylight behind. Fire Warden finally drew clear of Phantasy around the bend leading to the stretch, but the early effort took some toll. Apache's well-timed move came as they swung for home and he, also a six-year-old, found it an easy matter to run past Fire Warden, even if the effort left him lame. Phantasy stopped to fifth position.

Turf Trainers Ask Duplicate Saliva Tests

Baltimore, Nov. 9 (AP).—Members of the American Trainers Association went on record today in favor of making duplicate saliva tests of winning race horses, one sample to be sent to the chemist employed by the State racing commissions and the other to be retained at the track.

John M. Gaver, association president, said this would give trainers some protection in that the second sample could be tested if the first showed the presence of any stimulant.

He said that if the second sample failed to show the presence of the stimulant, then it would be known that a mixup had occurred in the handling.

Association members, at their meeting last night, said they did not question the actual tests, but that the possibility of error was increased when several persons handle the samples.

Trainers John A. Healey, Preston M. Burch, Rigan McKinney, and J. P. Jones were named on a committee to continue investigation of the saliva tests.

Several trainers have been suspended recently after tests showed their horses had been given stimulants.

Gaver and all other officers and directors were reelected.

Hampton Grid Game To Settle Championship

Hampton, Va., Nov. 9 (AP).—The Newport News Lighhearts and Washington Cavaliers will meet at 2 p. m. Sunday at Hampton to settle the question of the Virginia Negro Football League championship. In their first meeting the team battled to a 13-13 deadlock.

The Richmond Rams, eliminated in the league race, face Oakwood Athletic Club, a nonmember, at Richmond the same afternoon.

Bladensburg Captures County Soccer Title

Bladensburg tok the Prince Georges County soccer championship yesterday when it downed Maryland Park, 4-3, on the winners' field, Henry Pruitt decided the outcome in the last two minutes when he kicked his second goal of the game. In another league finale, Greenbelt defeated Laurel, 4-1.

Ambitious Wolverines Test Middies

By Al Costello
Post Staff Writer.

Once tied Navy and once defeated Michigan meet today in Baltimore's Municipal Stadium, 2 p. m., and if ever a game appears to be a tossup that has the oddsmakers somewhat baffled, this is it.

As things stood late last night the Middies were one point favorites over the young and dashing Wolverines from Ann Arbor. Earlier in the week, Michigan was a slight choice, but so much Navy money appeared the edge had to be swung to the Tars to prevent the books from getting swamped with money with a salty tinge.

Michigan has lost only to Army, 28-7, that defeat coming last month in New York that had Gotham writers tossing more nice adjectives about the Wolverines than Sammy Baugh throws passes. Since that Army defeat, Michigan has come a long way. Only last week powerful Minnesota was swamped (for Minnesota) 26-0 and the week before Illinois bowed, 19-0.

Tied With Irish

Navy, on whom the goddess of football fortunes has been smiling broadly all season, tied Notre Dame last week, 6-6, after five straight victories over Villanova, Duke, Penn State, Georgia Tech and Penn. Some say Navy was lucky to avert defeat at the hands of the Irish, or at Penn's hands, or at Georgia Tech's for that matter. But the Middies didn't lose.

Nevertheless, Navy continues to roll along undefeated, taking full advantage of breaks. A stout defense, admittedly tough to pierce, makes a touchdown go a long way. And Michigan must score to win, probably more than once. Navy, on the other hand, may make one score do the trick with its tight defense.

Both teams are having their troubles.

Navy's "Hunchy" Hoernschemeyer and Bob Kelly, regular quarter and right halfbacks, are not up to snuff. Both took beatings two weeks ago against Penn and again last week against Notre Dame game will take over in Kelly's spot. However, Hoernschemeyer and Kelly are certain to see some action.

Ponsetto, Yerges Ailing

Michigan, which worked out in Baltimore yesterday, may go into the game without the services of its chief engineer and captain Quarterback Joe Ponsetto, and his No. 1 relief, Howard Yerges, who took over in the Minnesota game and drove the Wolves to victory. Both are ailing.

George Huter, a third stringer, and Don Robinson, a returned regular of 1941 and '41 who isn't altogether hop to the offensive charts, will do the bulk of the quarterbacking, but Ponsetto and Yerges are not so badly banged up they cannot go in for brief moments.

Navy's great ball runer of last year, Bob "Trigger Jenkins, who has been out since the Duke game, except for about five minutes last week against the Irish, has fully recovered a knee injury and will take his accustomed place at fullback. Clyde "Smackover" Scott, Navy's great left halfback whose pass interception pulled the Notre Dame game out in the final period, will team with Smith and Minisi in the Navy starting lineup.

Teninga May Play

Michigan counters with Jack Weisenburger and Bob Nussbaumer, aided and abeted by a 164 pound scatback sensation, Henry Fonde, who was something of a sensation against Minnesota. Walter Teninga, regular lefthalf, isn't fully ready but, like Yerges and Ponsetto, may play.

Some 4000 tickets remain of the stadium's 59,000 capacity. These will be placed on sale this morning at the stadium. By game time it is expected they wil lbe exhausted.

The probable line-ups:

Michigan.		Navy.
Hershberger	L.E.	Duden
Johnson	L.T.	Kiser
Tomasi	L.G.	Carrington
Watts	Center	R. Scott
Wilkins	R.G.	Deramee
Hinton	R.T.	Coppedge
Renner	R.E.	Bramlett
Hutter	Q.B.	Smith
Teninga	L.H.	C. Scott
Nussbaumer	R.H.	Minisi
Weisenburger	F.B.	Jenkins

German Football Title to Third

Frankfurt, Nov. 9, (AP).—The Blue Devils of the Third Infantry Regiment squeezed out a 20-12 muddy field triumph over the hitherto unbeaten 508th Parachute Regiment today to win the Western Germany football championship.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and members of his staff were among the spectators.

The Blue Devils, coached by Bill Reed of William and Mary, scored once in the third period and twice in the final quarter on sustained drives with Phil Cutchin, former Kentucky University back, sparking the attack.

Jap Baseball Loop Will Reopen Soon

Tokyo, Nov. 9 .—The Japan Baseball Federation has decided to revive professional baseball which the government banned during the early days of the war, Kyodo News Agency said today. Teams throughout Nonshu will start training immediately. Games are planned soon by Hines of Kyoto, Osaka, Kobe and Tokyo.

Players Back Shaughnessy In Feud With Pitt Students

Pittsburgh, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—Coach Clark Shaughnessy's players came to his defense today as students at Pittsburgh circulated a petition asking for his replacement by "a coach who can win."

Following an informal meeting of the squad last night, a spokesman said that the players "decided the petition idea was very unfair to Coach Shaughnessy, and that they refused to sign it.

"The statements the petition makes as to our failure to win are silly," the players said. "We want the public to know we are 100 per cent behind our coach and will try to beat Ohio State for him on Saturday."

The petition, charging that Pitt has not had good football since Dr. John (Jock) Sutherland left, said that Shaughnessy "has not produced at Pitt with what is better than average material."

Shaughnessy has won 10 lost and lost 13 in three seasons at Pitt.

Western Ace Drags an Insistent Opponent

Tech High's Clarence Drayer couldn't be shaken off by Ted Uhler, of Western, in this shot of yesterday's interhigh clash. Uhler, who had snagged a pass from Lichty in the second quarter, was brought down after a 5-yard gain. Tech went ahead to win, 13-7.

Injury-Ridden Terps Play V. M. I. Today

By Newton Bowers
Post Staff Writer

That injury jinx which seems to be hovering over University of Maryland's football Terrapins struck again yesterday as the Terps prepared to meet Virginia Military Institute's Flying Squadron in an important Southern Conference clash, 2 p. m. today in Byrd Stadium.

With a Homecoming Day crowd of more than 8000 expected and the Terps trying to regain a foothold in the conference after being set back twice in three league starts, their chances of victory reached a new low as regular Quarterback Vic Turyn, Halfback George Barnes, ace passer, and possibly Bill (Red) Poling, second leading scorer in the conference, were stricken.

Both Turyn and Barnes were found to be suffering from influenza, and Barnes a slight concussion. Barnes was injured earlier in the week, but continued to participate in the workouts, and it wasn't until yesterday that the extent of the injury was determined. Both are definitely out of today's action.

May Play Today

Poling, the brilliant triple-threat halfback, has been confined to light drills this week with aching legs, but Head Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant indicated that he may see action today. Poling was hurt earlier in the season and shelved for two games.

All of which adds to Bryant's grief, "With these boys out, our chances are practically eliminated," he wailed yesterday, "but we'll be there for the kickoff. We had counted on Barnes for a lot of passing," Bryant continued, "and with him out, our offensive will consist now mostly of running plays."

End to Be Moved

Joe Shultz, Maryland's versatile player, will be moved back into the quarterback slot from his usual end position, while the rest of the Terp backfield will go something like this: Hammerin' Hank Bonk at fullback; either Poling or Bob Piker at right half and fleet Sammy Behr at the other half.

Today's game will be the twenty-third between the two schools since 1906, with Maryland holding the edge, 11-10, two contests having ended in ties. The invaders, with Lynn Chewning, triple threat halfback and leading Southern Conference scorer, and Bob Thomason, aerial artist, in their backfield, will be after their fourth league victory.

The probable line-ups:

VMI.		Maryland.
Totten	L.E.	Mortier
Mills	L.T.	Kinney
Skladany	L.G.	Johnston
Sheppard	Center	Schwenningel
Applin	R.G.	Fritz

North Carolina Battles W.-M. In Norfolk

Richmond, Va., Nov. 9 (AP).—Virginia Military Institute's Fighting Squadron, a foe respected on Southern Conference gridirons this season because of the inability to gauge its possibilities before hand, will meet the University of Maryland at 2 p. m. tomorrow, and the Cadets are favored to emulate the feat of William and Mary last week.

The game is a "homecoming feature" for the Terrapins and the third such event in which the squadron has participated this season.

As such attention will be directed to the meeting of the Indians and the University of North Carolina at Norfolk the same afternoon. Coach Rube McCray has been drilling the tribe all week in pass defense to offset the accurate shooting of Tommy Gorman, the Tar Heel heaving ace, and hopes that his strength on the ground will make up the difference held by the Carolinians in air power.

Two other conference games are on the schedule, Duke's meeting with North Carolina State at Raleigh, and Virginia Tech's clash with Clemson on the latter's field.

Coach Macauley McEver has been drilling the Gobblers in defense against the single wingback offensive and passing, two powerful weapons used by the Tigers. He is uncertain as to his starting line-up, what with injuries and losses to the squad. Al Klele, a tackle, joined the Army recently, and to add to this McEver hasn't a single tackle in top shape. Ross Orr, Frank Ballard, Bob Hess and Kill Kinsey are all nursing injuries.

Five men are available from which to select ends, and John Hamilton and Tim Lawler will be available for guard duty with either Tom Burns or Pat Demardo in center. His backfield prospects are brighter with Harry Bushkar, his star fullback, ready for service.

Other games on the program see Richmond at Charlottesville with the University of Virginia in a homecoming game and South Carolina meeting the Miami Hurricanes in the Orange Bowl. Wake Forest, the remaining member of the conference, has an open date.

Yale Is Favored To Win 500th Grid Game Today

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 9 (U.P.).—Unless something goes radically wrong, tomorrow will be a great day for the Yale football history book.

Yale meets Brown, which isn't out of the ordinary. But the significance of the game lies in the fact that if Yale wine—and it should—it will be the 500th victory for the boys in blue since they first started playing football in 1872.

Yale has played 642 games, won 499, lost 104 and tied 39. In 393 games opponents were held scoreless. In only 64 games did Yale fail to make some sort of a tally.

Pennsylvania is closest with 480 wins. Michigan is third with 366 victories.

Quien Es Wins Race Feature At Pimlico

By Walter Haight
Post Staff Writer

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 9.—Morris Wexler's Quien Es, one-time Calumet Farm sprint ace, regained winning form here this afternoon and won the Forrest Park, outstanding event on the Friday program. In an easier manner than the winning margin of three parts o fa length suggests, the 7-year-old son of Hygro and Bonnie Jane came to the finish line ahead of three rivals. In second position was J. P. Holton's Jo Agnes. Two lengths farther back was Deering Howe's Cassis, while fourth and last was H. G. Bedwell's Sollure.

In charge of Apprentice Jockey R. J. Martin, Quien Es paid a $6.40 mutuel to his backers in a crowd of 14,500 and was clocked in 1.12 for the six furlongs run over a fast track and under summer-like conditions.

More Down Jo Agnes

Jo Agnes, a winner in faster time than today's in her previous outing, took command in the opening stages and saved ground while drawing clear of Sollure. In the meanwhile Quien Es was not being hurried, and Cassie was trailing. Entering the stretch, Martin took Quien Es out and the veteran gelding slowly but surely wore down Jo Agnes. At the end Martin was taking the winner in hand.

Trainer Judy Johnson's representatives ran first and second in the day's steeplechase. The winner was John Stuart's Rice Cake by a half length over T. T. Mott's Bridlespur in a starting field of seven. In third position came F. H. Nelles' Danny Deever. The favorite players were eliminated when W. G. Jones' Dancing Archie fell at the tenth fence. Mrs. N. L. Brown's Bowling Lady tripped and also fell at the same brush but the jockeys involved escaped injury. Jockey H. Cruz rode Rice Cake the 2 miles over 15 jumps in 3.59 3/5 and backers of the entry collected at the rate of $10 to $2.

Shake Sir Wins

Longshot winners in the opening race are getting to be stock equipment at this turf point and today's session began with a $37.70 pay-off on A. J. Locoste's Shake Sir, ridden by Jockey Doug Dodson. The 4-year-old son of Sir Damion coasted into the finish line two and a half lengths ahead of R. L. Hall's well-played Coosa. Some six lengths farther back came I. G. Schorsch's Burdman to be third in the field of a dozen going a mile and a furlong.

J. Barnes' Our Best, backed down in the bettering, proved a "good thing" of merit in the second race. The son of War Hero, opposed by 11 other 2-year-olds forged to the finish line two and a half lengths in advance of H. L. Donovan's Periair. In third position was Flamingo Farm's Darten. The winner, handled by Jockey M. N. Gonzalez paid $6, completed a $242.40 daily double and was clocked in 1.15 1/5 for the six furlongs.

Hopkins Meets Drexel Tech

Baltimore, Nov. 9 (AP).—The Johns Hopkins University Blue Jays, undefeated and unscored upon in two games, meet the Drexel Tech Dragons here tomorrow in the final home fottball game for the Jays.

On the strength of comparative scores, the Blue Jays will be favored, since Johns Hopkins defeated University of Delaware, 6-0, and the lattef beat Drexel, 26-12.

Hopkins has used a string running game in stopping Delaware and Haverford, with left halfback, George Mullinix and fullback, Lou Koerber sparking the attack.

80,000 Fans To See Cadet, Irish Clash

By Bob Considine

New York, Nov. 9 (INS).—Still licking the wounds inflicted a week ago by Navy, Notre Dame's unbeaten football team will be much more heavily hit by Army's tremendous gridiron forces tomorrow afternoon in the Yankee Stadium.

Eighty thousand spectators, ranging from braid-dripping generals to sweat-shirted members of Notre Dame's New York subway alumni, will sit in on the 1945 renewal of the classic rivalry between the Cadets and the Irish.

Not since the old pigskin feud began in 1913 has Army been able to win two games in a row from Notre Dame. But the irrepressible club clubbed Notre Dame 59-0 last season and tomorrow is favored to win by at least three touchdowns.

Not Great Team

The Notre Dame Eleven which rumbles into the stadium tomorrow is not an outstanding Irish team. It lacks speed and adequate pass receivers for its brilliant quarterback, Boley Dancewicz, a fine broth of a Polish boy from the ould sod of Lynn, Mass.

His less pretentious teammates received a bruising mauling during their 6-6 tie with Navy last Saturday. Bud Angsman, halfback, had eleven teeth bashed out in the Navy game. Rooge Ruggerio, fullback, is hemstitched with 13 stitches along his chin and cheek. A plastic mask will protect Ruggerio's smashed nose.

Vincent Scott, Irish lineman, is still suffering from dizzy spells from the concussion he received in the Navy game. Bill Leonard, end, and Joe Gasparella, Dancewicz's sub, have gimpy legs.

If war broke out tomorrow with Monaco half the Notre Dame team would be declared 4-F.

Named Top Eleven

Army, on the other hand, is in a bloom of health which has lead some sober authorities to hail it as the best college team of the generation, and a fit club to beat any team in the National Football League except perhaps the Washington Redskins.

The Cadets, playing without a coaching staff—which was in Cleveland scouting Notre Dame and Navy—walked over Villanova last week 54-0 without expending a bead of perspiration.

Glenn Davis, the fastest halfback in the country, and Doc Blanchard, the toughest and hardest-hitting fullback since Bronko Nagurski, have scored 27 touchdowns for Army this second unbeaten season.

But Coach Red Blaik is far from wholly dependent on this fabulous 1-2 punch. He has three fine backfield combinations, and as many line changes.

Simmons May Help

Notre Dame's main chance seems to lie in the hope that Dancewicz will ome up with a movie script performance and combine this with a let-down on Army's part. The Irish also expect help from Floyd Simmons, a big lad who just joined the team after winning a name for himself on St. Mary's preflight team in California last winter.

Beyond that, nothing seems likely to stop Army from doing what it began to do last year—get even for years of set-backs at Notre Dame's hands and feet. The long series has seen the Irish win 22 games, against Army's six. There have been three ties. Last year's Army victory was its first in 12 years of competition against the South Benders.

New York hotels were jammed tonight, and there was much song at the annual parties given by tomorrow's foes. If you had the proper connections you could still buy a $4.80 ticket for $50.

Oliver's 68 Leads N.C. Golf

Durham, N. C., Nov. 9 (AP).—Edward S. (Porky) Oliver of Wilmington, Del., recently discharged from the Army after seevral years service, shot a 68, two under par, to take the first round lead in the Durham Open Golf Tournament here today.

Ten golfers, including Benny Hogan, were tied for second at 69. The others were Amateur Willie Turnesa, Pensacola, Fla.; Ed Furgol, Birmingham, Mich.; Herman Barron, White Plains, N. Y.; Al Zimmerman, Portland, Oreg.; Barney Clark, Denver; Clarence Owen, Martinsville, Va.; George Payton, Newport News, Va.; Ky Laffoon, Chicago, and Toney Penna, Dayton, Ohio.

Redskins Fail To Obtain Guard Now in Navy

Redskin negotiations for the services of Elwood Gerber, a 225-pound former Alabama guard now performing with the Fleet City Navy eleven of Shoemaker, Calif., fell through yesterday—for this season at least.

Gerber, property of the Philadelphia Eagles, may yet become Redskin property by next year in time to report for preseason training at Los Angeles.

Meanwhile, the Redskins polished off last minute details on both offense and defense for tomorrow's battle here with the Boston Yanks, who upset the Redskins last month in Boston, 28-20. Today, the club will engage only in the lightest sort of a drill.

Again the Redskin management broadcasts the warning:

The ball park has been sold out for over a week. If you do not have a ticket, don't come.

Tech Trips Western in Thriller, Colts Beaten

Wilson Stops Coolidge, 18-13; Central Scores

Trainers Stay in Race With Late Triumph, 13 to 7; Vikings Top Roosevelt Eleven

Fighting with their backs to the wall in the interhigh football stretch drive, Tech's Trainers came from behind to defeat Western's plucky Red Raiders, 13-7, with only five minutes to play at Western Stadium. A defeat would have eliminated Tech.

Meanwhile, Coolidge's championship hopes received a severe, almost fatal jolt, when the previously undefeated Colts bowed, with two minutes to play, to Wilson's Green Tigers, 18-13, at Wilson. And Central's Vikings, out of the championship running, gained their second straight victory by romping over Roosevelt, 28-6, at Roosevelt.

The day's action set the stage for the final two-week race to the wire that will see Coolidge meeting Eastern's first place Ramblers, and Tech's surging fourth place Tigers, while Anacostia's second place Indians battle Wilson and Eastern.

Pass Aids Wilson In Colt Downfall

With less than three minutes remaining in the game, Wilson High's Bob Voight rifled a 36-yard pass to Bill Daly in the end zone to overcome a 13-12 deficit and hand Coolidge's Colts their first 1945 interhigh defeat.

Some 2000 fans saw the Green Tigers score twice in the second period to come within one point of the lead, and then take to the air in the final period to clinch their second league game of the season and damaging Coolidge's playoff hopes.

With the exception of that last touchdown, all the scoring was crammed into the second period, with first Coolidge scoring and then Wilson—each twice. Charley Kiesgen, Coolidge's all-high end candidate, and Quarterback Stan King provided both the Colts' touchdowns, with Kiesgen on the receiving end of King aerials.

After King had intercepted a Gene Taylor pass on his own 39 and returned it to the Wilson 19, Fullback Jack Doffert ran the ball to the four, where King passed it over. Bill Shrader drop-kicked the extra point. After Wilson had scored, King passed to Kiesgen from his own 49 to the 9, where Kiesgen ran it over.

A punt and a kickoff set up both of Wilson's second period touchdowns. Taylor took a punt on his own 40 and returned it to the 17, where he passed to Hall to the 3. Taylor took it to the two, and Bob Wiegand took it over. Mat Gunther, a sub, took a Coolidge kickoff on his own 26 and ran all the way to the Coolidge three before being hauled down. Weigand again took it over.

Varied Attack Wins for Vikings

Central bounded into the lead after two minutes of play in the first quarter, when the passing combination of Pete Lerario to Hal Sponsler clicked for 20 yards to the Roosevelt 19, and Gene Hammill led the ground assaunt that carried into the end zone. It was Hammill's first of three touchdowns for the day. Steve Manos converted.

Hammill and Lerario sparked the Vikings' second period 45-yard touchdown drive with Hammill going over from the 2. Manos again converted.

Lerario set up the third Central touchdown in the third quarter when he intercepted an Al DuGoff aerial on his own 38. Lerario then sent a long pass to Dick Scribner, who made a sensational catch on the Riders' 20, where he was downed. On the next play Lerario spun out of a deep reverse and sped down the sideline over the goal line. Hammill added an extra point to his laurels by rushing through center.

Central tallied its last score in the final period when Lerario cut loose with another 40-yard pass to Scribner, who was tackled on the Roosevelt 12. Lerario and Hammill, in two plays, brought the pikskin to the 2, where Hammill went over. Manos booted his third extra point.

The Riders scored their lone touchdown in the final mihutes on a 10-yard pass from DuHoff to Buddy Ruble.

Shore Cage League Sets 15 Games

Salisbury, Md., Nov. 9 (AP).—Robert N. Coddry, president of the six-club Central Shore Basketball League, today announced a 15-5 and ending March 22.

game schedule starting December

The league will include Salisbury, Crisfield, Pocomoke City, Snow Hill and Somerset Army Base.

Club representatives have agreed that each team will submit a 12-man roster at the next league meeting November 30 in Berlin, Md.

League officials have decided to submit names of returning servicemen who desire to play to all six teams. No club will be permitted to increase its strength by more than 3 veterans, raising the maximum strength to 15.

Tech Scores First, Then Must Rally

After a scoreless first half in which Western failed to take advantage of two deep penetrations into enemy territory, Tech hopped into a short-lived lead.

Starting from their own 29, after receiving the third period kickoff, the Trainers' touchdown twins, Andy Davis and Cecil Gray, began a drive that covered 66 yards to the Raider 5. Davis then blasted through tackle to score. Paul Pometto failed to convert when Davis fumbled the pass from center.

However, the undaunted Raiders, who a few weeks ago almost upset Eastern, "made" a break, took advantage of it and bounded into the lead. Alert line play by Dave Carpenter set up the Western score when the Raider tackle assisted in tackling Tech's Gray on his own 14 and fell on the pigskin when the Trainer halfback fumbled.

Norm Wacker then passed to Don Lichty who raced to a first down on Tech 1. Bob Glasgow, a reserve back, tied up the game on the first play of the final period by knifing off tackle into the end zone. Western converted when Guard Don Moreland, who turned in one of his best performances of the season yesterday, faked a place kick and passed over the goal to John Beatty.

The determined Trainers, realizing that deefat would eliminate them from playoff contention, once more called on Davis and Gray, who came through in decisive fashion. In 10 plays the two-fisted Trainer backfield punch covered 67 yards to the Western 3, where Gray vaulted over center into the end zone. Pometto converted with five minutes remaining in the game.

Bainbridge Plays Little Creek Team

Bainbridge, Md., Nov. 9.—The Fifth Naval District football championship will be at stake this weekend as the Bainbridge Commodores, winner of four of their five starts this season, and the Little Creek (Va.) Amphibs, winner of their last four starts, clash at the United States Naval Amphibious Base in Virginia Sunday.

Little Creek scored a 14-7 win over the Navy "B" team last week after defeating Camp Lee 21 to 7 the previous week. Bainbridge holds a 27-0 win over Camp Lee early in the season.

The Commodores are expected to be at full strength for the Amphibs. Murray Evans, quarterback, held out of the second half of the Nashville ATC game last week, because of an ankle jnury, is expected to be ready Sunday.

Coffield Signed To Wrestle Lewis

Jim Coffield, veteran Kansas City grappler, was signed yesterday to meet Ed (Strangler) Lewis, five-time former world's heavyweight wrestling champion in one of the douoble windup bouts on next Wednesday night's show at Turner's Arena.

In a recent match here Coffield won from Laverne Baxter in 33 minutes when the Texan was disqualified.

Eagles Will Honor Basca, War Hero

Philadelphia, Nov. 9 (AP).—Nick Basca, one of the gridiron greats who gave up his life in World War II, will be honored at the professional football game Sunday between the Philadelphia Eagles and the New York Giants.

Basca, one of the brightest luminaries in Villanova College history, played his last game with the Eagles the day Pearl aHrbor was being attacked. He was killed in France on Armistice Day, 1944, just one year ago Sunday.

Abrams, Out of Navy, Likes Style Of Stablemate BB

Georgie Abrams, No 1 middleweight contender recently discharged from the Navy, yesterday pronounced Bee Bee Washington in top shape for his scrap with Johnny Lawer Tuesday night at Turner's Arena.

Abrams, a native Washingtonian, will engage in warm-up sessions with Bee Bee, his stablemate. The former Navy chief is in line for another shot at Middleweight Champion Tony Zale, and he's hopeful that the bout will take place this winter.

Matchmaker Menendez closed out two preliminary bouts for Tuesday. Lightweight Bobby Gunther will face Tommy Daniels, and Bernie Cady, former District amateur, wil lengage B-29 Banks.

Phils' Pitcher Inducted Into Armed Forces

Richmond, Va., Nov. 9 (AP).—Robert Chakales, who joined the Philadelphia Phillies organization last spring, has been inducted into service, his mother, Mrs. Edward P. Chakales, said today. His parents do not know yet just what branch their son is in, she said.

She added, "we haven't heard a word from Robert since he left home yesterday to take his physical."

The 18-year-old pitcher, who prepped at Benedictine, passed his physical yesterday and was mustered right into service.

19th Virginia, Spider Clash To Draw 8000

Charlotteville, Va., No. 9 (AP).—Virginia's undefeated Cavaliers will face Richmond's Spiders in tomorrow's homecoming game in Scott Stadium with a all-17-year-old second-string backfield operating behind a varsity line that may include one guard who joined the squad just a week ago.

This nineteenth game in the Virgini-Richmond series which started in 1893 will be seen by a crowd expected to number more than 8000 if Indian summer weather continues over the weekend year of the war.

Wayne Cantrell, 198-pound guard from Mayfield, Ky., who joined the squad November 1 as a Navy ROTC engineer from Emory and Henry, has been selected by Line Coach Al Thomas to fill the vacant right guard position left open by the commissioning of Jack Holz, Ambler, Pa., who watched yesterday's drill before leaving for duty in California.

Virginia's regular backfield, Charlie Ellis, Harrisonburg, Va., quarterback; Jay Kennard, Ashland, Ky., fullback, and Ray Brown, Falls Church, Va., have been working together with Perry running in the right halfback position usually filled by John Duda, Scarbro, W. Va., cocaptain and for two seasons high scorer.

Duda, who has received orders to report to Washington on November 19 for further training before commissioning, has not been in uniform all week, and will watch the game from the bench tomorrow. If the first-string backfield is used as a unit Perry will probably play in Duda's post.

Service Set Honors Britons During Visit

Air Marshal Sir Arthur W. Tedder, who served as Allied Deputy Commander in Chief for the invasion of Europe, who was in Washington for a brief visit, accompanied by Lady Tedder, left yesterday for New York on the first leg of an extended tour of the country as guest of Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff.

Sir Arthur and Lady Tedder were entertained at luncheon Thursday by Gen. and Mrs. Henry H. Arnold and later in the day were honor guests of Air Marshal Douglas Colyer, who entertained at a cocktail party. That evening they were guests of honor at a dinner given by the British Ambassador and the Countess of Halifax.

Among guests at Air Marshal Colyer's party were the Earl and Countess of Halifax; the French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet, Admiral Sir James Somerville, Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King, Gen. and Mrs. George Marshall, Sir John and Lady Laverack.

Vice Admiral and Mrs. Alan Kirk were there and Mrs. A. A. Vandegrift, Field Marshal Sir Henry Maitland Wilson and Lady Wilson; Gen. and Mrs. Carl Spaatz, Gen. and Mrs. Harold George and Senator and Mrs. Peter Gerry.

The bride-elect attended Strayer College of Secretarial Training and George Washington University.

Mr. Andrews is a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The wedding will take place November 24 in All Saints' Episcopal Church.

You Can Lose Those Excess Twenty Pounds

By Ida Jean Kain

If you thought you had just 60 days left in which to lose those 20 excess pounds, or be stuck with them for keeps, nothing could stop you from going on a firm-no-fooling-diet . . . today!

Well, why not do it? This is an ideal month to start slimming. In the next eight weeks you can lose 20 pounds, if you are that much or more above your normal weight.

But start right. Toss out all notions of a faddy diet. This time you're going to eat to get slim!

But a safe reducing diet does not slash calories indiscriminately. With overweight you have extra calories to burn, but you do not have any such reserve of tissue-building materials—proteins, minerals and vitamins. So these nutrients must be furnished daily in normal amounts, not in reduced amounts.

A scientific low-calorie diet is made up almost exclusively of protective foods. You can't go wrong if you eat these foods daily: Two fresh fruits, always one a citrus, oranges or grapefruit; two cooked vegetables, one a green leafy or a yellow, a raw vegetable. For protein have one or two eggs and a serving of fish, lean meat or fowl. To insure adequate calcium, have one or two glasses of skim milk or buttermilk.

This protective diet is adequate; to make it abundant as far as vitamins go, supplement the diet with one vitamin concentrate furnishing vitamins A, B-1, B-2, C, D. A concentrate seems to make reducing easier because it increases your feeling of well-being.

You may lose 3 pounds the first week, or you may not lose for several days or a week. But if you stick with the menus the scales will eventually go down.

The victory reducing diets contain between 1000 and 1100 calories a day, all in the protective foods. In sending for the diet, please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ida Jean Kain, The Washington Post.

Mrs. P. Heagerty Will Place Wreath On Soldier's Tomb

All units of the District Department, American Legion Auxiliary, will be represented at the Armistice Day ceremonies tomorrow at Arlington National Cemetery. Color bearers will appear with the department and unit colors.

Mrs. Pearl Heagerty, department president, will place a wreath presented by the United States Department of Agriculture Unit on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier on behalf of the department. Unit members will assist in serving lunch to the National Guard of Honor, legionnaires and auxiliary members participating in this annual service.

In the afternoon, Mrs. Heagerty, accompanied by color bearers and guards, will place a wreath on the tomb of President Woodrow Wilson at memorial services at the Washington National Cathedral. This wreath was contributed by Past President Mrs. Irene Arnold for the past presidents' parley, in the name of the District department.

Claytie Carney Becomes Bride Of Lieut. C. B. Vandevanter

A princess gown of white satin with long pointed sleeves, court train and veil of illusion with lace trim were worn by Miss Claytie Catherine Carney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Carney, Murfreesboro, Tenn., when she exchanged wedding vows with Lieut. Chauncey Brooks Vandevanter, son of Col. and Mrs. Elliott Vandevanter, Alexandria, Va., Monday afternoon in the home of the bride's parents.

Decorations were of white chrysanthemums, tapers and ferns, and the Rev. George De Hoff performed the ceremony. Mr. Carney gave his daughter in marriage.

Mrs. Robert Bass, matron of honor, was costumed in aqua lace and net. She carried a French bouquet. A gown of yellow net and lace and flowers similar to those of the matron of honor were worn by Mrs. E. D. Harmon, bridesmaid.

Best man was Col. Elliott Vandevanter, jr., brother of the bridegroom and William Allen Cunningham served as usher.

The reception which followed was held in the bride's home and her mother assisted in a gown of black crepe with rhinestone and silver trim. The mother of the bridegroom was attired in blue with bronze color accessories.

The bride attended Stephens College, Columbia, Mo., and Tennessee State College. The bridegroom attended the United States Military Academy at West Point.

After a wedding trip to New York and Washington, Lieutenant and Mrs. Vandevanter will live in Sebring, Fla.

Martin—Swan

Fall leaves, ivy sprays and mixed pompoms decorated the Chapel of the Ascension, Baltimore, Md., Wednesday, when Miss Barbara Barrie Swan, daughter of Col. and Mrs. C. W. Swan, Baltimore, became the bride of Pvt. Francis Clemence Martin, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis C. Martin, Washington. The Rev. Charles C. Hein performed the ceremony.

The bride chose for her wedding gown, ivory satin, fashioned with a high Peter Pan collar and long veil of illusion edged with heirloom lace and caught by a coronet cap of seed pearls. The bridal bouquet was of white orchids, gardenias and roses, and her only ornament was a strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. Colonel Swan gave his daughter in marriage.

Mrs. Baxter S. John, jr., sister of the bride, attended her as matron of honor in turquoise blue satin and matching accessories. She carried an arm spray of yellow tea roses.

Baxter S. John, jr., was best man.

A draped crepe gown of blue and wide jeweled belt costumed the bride's mother at the reception which followed the ceremony.

Pvt. and Mrs. Francis C. Martin, jr., will live near Camp Pickett until the bridegroom reports for overseas duty.

Mrs. Stewart Fetes Niece

Mrs. Spencer W. Stewart, New York, gave a luncheon at the Mayflower yesterday in honor of her niece, Lieut. Mary Stewart, USNR, whose marriage to Lieut. Charles Wesley Roberts, USNR, will take place today in Bethlehem Chapel of Washington Cathedral.

Mrs. Stoddard Gives Valuable Volumes Away

By Genevieve Reynolds

Mrs. Florence Jackson Stoddard, founder of the International Association of Arts and Letters, Inc., looked over her prize collection of rich "Americana," pulled out choice volumes and presented them to libraries about town and in nearby Virginia.

To George Washington University she gave a file of the Overland Monthly, the California magazine established by Bret Harte many years ago. While living in the Golden State, Mrs. Stoddard was editor of this magazine.

For many years she kept up a lively personal correspondence with Rudyard Kipling. A fortnight before his death the venerable poet wrote her a note of appreciation for the IAAL's celebration of his seventieth birthday. The event was held here at the Carlton Hotel, December 29, 1937. These notes and letters have been turned over to the Library of Congress.

Aided Library Plan

When the late Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wilder started a library in McLean, Va., Mrs. Stoddard aided. The late Mrs. Wilder and Mrs. Stoddard became friends while members of the District of Columbia League of American Pen Women. Last week Mrs. Stoddard gave the McLean Library 350 European picture postcards that she had made on a pedestrian tour. Also in the collection, which is a memorial to Mrs. Wilder, are many official photographs of Cuba taken during the American occupancy of General Wood and Governor Magoon.

Important photographs of this period in Cuba and also in the Argentine were given to the Pan American Union Library. Many date back to 1887. Mrs. Stoddard presented the data to Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director, PAU, in person.

Bits of This and That . . .

Potomac Camp and Hospital Council, American Red Cross, will meet Tuesday, 10:30 a. m., at Fort Belvoir. . . . Mrs. Dorothy N. Bates, chairman, Correct Use Flag Committee, Chevy Chase Chapter, DAR, announces that 12 flags will be presented during the year. First of these will go to Girl Scout Troop No. 195. The chapter has set aside the evening of November 20 to fill buddy bags for hospitalized merchant seamen. Gathering spot will be at the home of Mrs. H. B. Ingersoll. Mrs. Ronald A. MacNab was appointed treasurer of the chapter to succeed Mrs. Rose J. Rudd.

Charter Makes Impression

The Atlantic Charter, with its Four Freedoms, has made a deep impression upon the thinking people of the Latin-American republics, according to Mrs. Elizabeth Shirely Enochs, chairman, United States delegation to the first Pan-American Congress of Social Welfare Conference, held recently in Santiago, Chile.

Guest speaker at the Pan-American Liaison Committee's meeting yesterday at the AAUW clubhouse, she pointed out that all the delegates were convinced that social services should be developed and administered in such a way that the Four Freedoms will become realities in the lives of all peoples throughout the world.

Mrs. Enochs said social welfare work is making great strides in all the Latin-American countries and that there is professional solidarity and continental vision among the workers in this field.

"Some of the liveliest discussions in the conference followed papers on the role of the social worker in industry, the care of children born out of wedlock and the development of social work in rural areas," explained Mrs. Enochs.

Miss Mabel Vernon, chairman of the liaison committee, presided and introduced the speaker.

'Moral Breakdown' Is Topic

"Are We Facing a Moral Breakdown in America?" This controversial question will be discussed by four prominent clubwomen on the American Forum of the Air, Tuesday, 9:30 p. m.

Speakers will be Mrs. Horace B. Ritchie, chairman, National Women's Advisory Committee on Social Protection; Mrs. Evelyn Millis Duvall, executive secretary, National Conference of Family Relations, United Council of Church Women; Mrs. Bess N. Rosa, dean of the Women's College, University of North Carolina, and national chairman, social hygiene group, Congress of Parents and Teachers Association; Mrs. Eleanor Fowler, secretary-treasurer, Women's Auxiliaries of the CIO.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

Long or Short?

One of women's old prewar problems has reared its ugly head again. As usual, Mrs. Henrietta DeGoofey, indefatigable reformer, has come to the aid of her sex.

Mrs. DeGoofey

"I understand millions of American women are now in a state of chronic indecision, bordering on nervous breakdown, as to whether to wear long or short dresses to after-six social events," the reformer told her press conference yesterday.

This problem, Mrs. DeGoofey warned, would grow more acute during reconversion. "We are all completely in a dither about our evening attire," she said, "because no one knows how fast we are going back to normalcy. Also, the atom bomb has added further uncertainty to our future social program since we may have to design future evening attire for underground dining and wining. Now during the war we wore our dressy—or even undressy—short dresses, and that was that. But now some of us are getting our 1941 dinner dresses out of the moth balls and others are pleading with stores to conjure long dresses off their empty racks. Still others, realizing the uncertainty of tires, taxis and peace negotiations, are sticking to their wartime short dresses. Hence any evening gathering looks like a costume party, and every woman present is wishing she were wearing something else."

Evasive Hostesses

"But Mrs. DeGoofey," asked the editor of the Ivory Tower Review, "shouldn't hostesses tell their guests whether to wear long or short frocks?"

"Have you ever known of a hostess who didn't say 'Just wear anything'?" countered the reformer. "Now because of this mixup," she continued, "every woman who is invited to a buffet supper or a little dinner or an evening at home movies spends days telephoning to find who else is invited and then telephoning these prospects to learn what they are going to wear. She nags her family constantly for advice on the matter and drives herself crazy with worry.

"Whatever she wears, she is likely to find herself on the losing side—either one of a minority in a short dress and feeling drab, sensible and big-footed, or one of the few in long dress and feeling conspicuous, cheap and overdressed. To bring order of this sartorial chaos, I am organizing the DeGoofey Poll of Public Opinion. Its first public service will be to get the guest lists of all prospective hostesses and take polls on what these guests are going to wear. Anyone subscribing to this service—for a very reasonable fee, payable in advance and no checks accepted—will be able to call poll headquarters and get a detailed report on the prospective costumes for any prospective party."

Clothes Relief

"But suppose a woman finds she doesn't have the kind of dress the majority are wearing to some event?" asked a fashion coordinator.

"I am starting a costuming service to meet that difficulty," said Mrs. DeGoofey. "I have arranged with some of the agencies collecting old clothes for cold and ragged Europeans to turn over to me some of their more dressy numbers out of the tons of afternoon and evening gowns (as well as evening slippers) they have received.

"Since emaciated European women could not keep warm anyway in short sleeved and little black afternoon dresses or bare backed and back bosomed evening formals, and would be somewhat impeded in doing their cooking and water carrying in such garb, I feel that I will be doing the clothes relief agencies a favor in taking over these supplies.

"Now with these garments I expect to set up an office with fitters and remodelers so that any woman who is invited to a party can find an outfit to make her look like all the other women there."

"Just one question," broke in a roving reporter with sideburns and a tuxedo. "Why should any woman want to look like other women?"

"I will not dignify such a silly question with an answer," said Mrs. DeGooefy, adjourning her press conference.

Miss Shaw Visiting Comdr., Mrs. Luce

Miss Ray Shaw, the talented sculptress, who is here from New York for a visit to Comdr. and Mrs. Gardiner Luce, will be guest of honor at a dinner this evening to be given by Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Breakey. Tomorrow evening Mrs. John Q. MacDonald will be hostess at a supper in honor of Miss Shaw.

Mrs. Luce entertained a few friends at cocktails at the Mayflower yesterday for her guest.

Whiteley-Bathke Marriage Revealed

Mrs. Jenn Bathke, Oshkosh, Wis., announces the marriage of her daughter, Audrey Hope, to Robert Fitch Shepard Whiteley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Peyton Whiteley, Washington, October 19.

The Whiteleys are honeymooning in California, where they plan to attend college.

The Telescope Reaches Almost to Christmas; Notes of the Theater

SCANNING THE THEATRICAL HORIZON through the long end of the telescope, it is possible to detect the prospect of a rosy few weeks of stage entertainment.

"State of the Union," of course, will be closing its brief engagement at the National Theater tonight to what would be standing-room business, if standees were permitted to torture their dogs at the National.

Florence Reed

As must be pretty well known by now, it will be followed Monday night by the Shuberts' new edition of "The Passing Show," with Willie Howard, Sue Ryan and Bobby Morris starred, which, in turn, will be succeeded by a week's return engagement of Leo G. Carroll, Janet Beecheer, Percy Waram, et al—meaning the original cast practically intact on November 19.

Then we begin to get into the heretofore virtually unknown.

For two weeks, beginning Tuesday night, November 27, Manager Eddie Plohn will be breaking out "Spring in Brazil," the new Milton Berle starrer, for the first time on E st. The reason for the day's delay in opening is the same as obtained in the case of "State of the Union"—the production is too heavy to get into the theater and assemble for a Monday night inaugural, even though the jump in this case, is only from Pittsburgh.

Again, "as in the case of," there will be three matinees of "Spring in Brazil" the first week—Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday. The second week, however, will be inaugurated on Sunday night, with only one matinee, on Saturday, scheduled for the second semester.

After that, beginning Monday night, December 10, the Theater Guild will present its new production of Shakespeare's "The Winter's Tale" as the second subscription offering of the season. The principal roles in this rare revival will be played by Florence Reed, Henry Daniell and Jessie Royce Landis. So far as I know at this point, the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees will prevail both weeks of this engagement.

So what would you like for Christmas?

As long as the matter has come up, it might be all right to disclose that Manager Sol Sorkin of RKO-Keith's Theater, with almost contagious optimism, expects to get from here over the Yuletide with only three pictures. One reason is now on view in "This Love of Ours," which is definitely headed for a second week on 15th st. Next on the booking sheets is the RKO-Radio Technicolor production of "The Spanish Main," with Paul Henreid and Maureen O'Hara at the top of a de luxe cast that includes Walter Slezak, Binnie Barnes, John Emery, J. M. Kerrigan, Fritz Leiber, Ian Keith, Victor Kilian, Antonio Moreno—remember?—and hordes more. This buckle swasher has been piling up grosses in other cities of such monumental proportions as to impel Mr. Sorkin to schedule daily showings to all intents and purposes running from dawn to dawn. Even so, he figures the fillum will run weeks and weeks and weeks. In case it doesn't, Yvonne de Carlo will be standing by to take over in "Frontier Gal," with Rod Cameron, Andy Devine, Fuzzy Knight, Sheldon Leonard, Andrew Tombes and divers and sundry others to back her up in her second starring role. Then the big one! Assuming that by now it is almost Christmas, the holiday trade may look forward to Leo McCarey's "Bells of St. Mary's" on the Keith screen for the Yuletide. This is the ostensible successor to "Going My Way," with Bing Crosby and Ingrid Bergman costarred. What more do you want?

It hasn't been seen here as yet, except in preview, but Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's screen idyll, "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes," starring Edward G. Robinson, Agnes Moorehead, Margaret O'Brien and Jackie "Butch" Jenkins, has been voted the Boxoffice Blue Ribbon Award by the National Screen Council as the best picture for family consumption released in October. The Warner Brothers' "Rhapsody in Blue" was the runnerupper, with "State Fair," Twentieth Century-Fox, and "Love Letters," Paramount release now on the screen at the Earle, the Honorable Mentions!

A Stupendous Service

The voluntary agreement by which the motion picture industry donated the cream of the Hollywood studio crop without charge to the armed forces having run out in October, the participating film companies have made a tabulation of their contribution to wartime morale.

Since the first 80 prints of screen subjects were shipped overseas shortly after Pearl Harbor, a total of 43,306 prints of feature pictures and 33,236 of short subjects has been delivered without cost to Overseas Motion Picture Service. These totals were made up of 16 mm. prints of 1042 different features and 1051 short subjects.

During these 204 weeks, all entertainment films made by Hollywood producers were placed at the disposal of the Government; were screened by Army and Navy officers, who selected the pictures most desirable for showing overseas to military and naval personnel and requested as many prints as were needed to service the constantly changing troop deployments.

The physical cost of the film was over 4 million dollars, which included 50 million feet donated by the Eastman Kodak Co., and the Photo Products division of the du Pont Co., and 100 million feet purchased from them.

Laboratory processing was paid for by the film industry, and 41 million dollars represents the copyright value of these pictures at 5 cents per person, which runs the money value of the gift up to something in excess of 45 million dollars.

The gentleman in the last row rises to inquire what other commercial industry in these United States contributed an equivalent value of its only salable product to the war effort.

It says here that all Warner Brothers theaters in the District will hold special matinees on Monday, to be observed as the Armistice Day holiday in the Nation's Capital. All neighborhood houses will open at 12:30 p. m., with the first performance scheduled for 1 p. m. Downtown, the Earle and Central theaters will open, as usual, at 10:30 a. m., with the first feature at 11. The Metropolitan will unlock the doors at 9:45 a. m., first feature showing at 10. So now you know.

Time-and-Space Note

These here now other items on Monday, and we'll bet you can hardly wait!

Harmelin to Head Ft. Meade Chapter Of Veterans' Group

T/Sergt. William Harmelin, Greenbelt, Md., has been named chairman of the Fort Meade provisional chapter of the new American veterans committee.

At the same time, Sergt. Taft S. Felman, 400 N. Oxford st., Arlington, Va., was appointed to head the group's political and legislative committee and public relations. Felman is a former Milwaukee newspaperman and member of the OPA information division here.

Some 42 enlisted men and women and officers were enrolled in the chapter's charter membership drive.

Leonard Lyons

New York, Nov. 9.—Dosoo Karaka, columnist for the Bombay Chronicle, is the first Indian war correspondent to visit this country. Karaka, former president of the Oxford Union, was accredited to SHAEF, and before then covered the retreat from Burma during which he sent a story that the Japs were using an army of monkeys to fight rear-guard snipers by dropping cocoanuts filled with TNT . . . When he covered the Italian theater he was granted a 15-minute interview with Gen. Mark Clark. Karaka arrived, and a staff member asked him for his prepared list of questions. "I have none," said the correspondent . . . "Then why do you want to see General Clark?" asked the staff man. "I'm just curious. I want to see what an American general looks like," he confessed . . . Clark agreed to see him, explaining: "I'm curious too. I want to see what an Indian war correspondent looks like."

Gen. Mark Clark

Harold Laski is coming to America for a five-day stay, to attend the National Associates' Forum on the atomic bomb. He has a high priority for the return trip from New York to London, but Laski has been unable as yet to obtain a priority to leave London for America . . . John Hay Whitney is setting up a company which will lend money to small business firms . . . John Rogge, the Department of Justice's special prosecutor who was in charge of the sedition trial in Washington, is writing a book . . . Four of the S. S. men who helped raze Lidice now are under arrest in a nearby town, awaiting the rope.

A British actress visited Noel Coward and started to tell him about her troubles. Her current play was about to close, she lamented, and this was the third successive flop she'd been in. Her husband had just left her. A film company which had an option on her services had decided not to exercise the option. Her funds were low. The small income she was receiving from a family trust was dwindling . . . Coward listened to this travail, tapped the actress on the shoulder and added: "And you're getting no younger, dear."

Mayor-elect William O'Dwyer has invited Commissioner Morris Novik, director of the municipal radio station, to stay on in his administration. Novik will continue only long enough to set up a capable successor unit . . . Both the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy have asked for the continuance of the National Inventors Council, which was successful in finding and developing many new devices useful in the prosecution of the war. . . A Government observer who was sent abroad to report on the work of UNRRA said recently: "UNRRA's problem is that it is trying to cover a 6-foot man with a 2-foot blanket."

During the recent strike in Hollywood, when all the studios were being picketed and the most violent picketing took place at the Warner Bros. studio, Harry Warner was asked if he crosses the picket line . . . "No, I don't," he answered . . . "Then if you don't cross the picket line," he was asked, "why do you ask other people to go through?" . . . Warner replied: "Does Eisenhower go up to the front?"

Eugene O'Neill hasn't been to the theater during his current visit to New York. But he's been up at Baker Field on Saturday, with George Jean Nathan, watching Columbia play football . . . Some of the plants being sold by the RFC are bringing more than the reproduction costs—because the purchasers are anxious to start manufacturing immediately rather than wait to build their own factories . . . Bonar Colleano, the American GI who was selected for a role in the British film, "Johnny in the Clouds," received a movie contract as a result of his performance. Colleano will remain in London.

From a correspondent in Europe: "The Terminus Hotel in Naples is the scene of one of the war's greatest crap games—it's been going on among visiting Allied officers for almost three years without interruption." . . . The Air Force boys have just about ruined the fabulous prices at which GIs were able to peddle watches and glutted the market . . . A new supply-route is being hastened for the delivery of UNRRA goods to Czechoslovakia and Poland. A good deal of these supplies has been stolen from trains passing through the Balkans. There'll be a new Balkan route."

Paul Fitzpatrick, State Chairman of the Democratic Party, celebrated O'Dwyer's victory in the Stork Club. But Fitzpatrick was more elated over a surprising victory scored by the Democratic candidate for sheriff in Schoharie County. "O'Dwyer was a cinch," said Fitzpatrick, "but this Sheriff won in a Republican district" . . . Feodor Chaliapin, the actor-son of the famed singer, was crossing Broadway with Frank Loesser. Both were almost run down by a line of cars which paid no heed to the red traffic lights. Chaliapin, who just arrived in New York, studied the miles of traffic lights and sighed: "What a waste of electricity."

SHOCKING US! WELL, HOW DO YOU LIKE THAT?
YOU'D THINK HE NEVER SAW US BEFORE.
HE'S GETTING TERRIBLY UPPITY LATELY. FIRST HE TOOK TO WEARING COATS AND PANTS THAT MATCH...
AND NOW HE USES GARTERS...
HE'S DEFINITELY GETTING TO BE A SIMPLY HOPELESS SNOB!

SUPERMAN

HOW I'VE MISUNDERSTOOD SUPERMAN. I SHOULD'VE REALIZED! AND THE WAY I SPOKE TO HIM! I-I FEEL SO ASHAMED.
WELL-- FORGET IT...
CARE TO SEE THE FIRST FRUITS OF SUPERMAN'S JILTING YOU? EVERYTIME HE WENT AFTER GAUNT IN THE PAST, GAUNT ESCAPED BY MENACING YOU. BUT THIS TIME, YOU WERE SAFE.
WHY-- THE STORY'S UNDER YOUR BY-LINE. IF SUPERMAN'S SO FOND OF ME, HOW COME HE GAVE YOU THE SCOOP?
THAT'S OBVIOUS! IF HE'D GIVEN IT TO YOU--IT WOULD BE A PUBLIC ANNOUNCEMENT OF HIS FRIENDSHIP AND YOU'D BE IN DANGER AGAIN!
THAT SETTLES IT! I WON'T BE CHEATED OF MY SCOOPS BECAUSE OF A LITTLE DANGER! WHETHER SUPERMAN LIKES IT OR NOT, I'M PUBLICLY ANNOUNCING MY RECONCILIATION WITH HIM TODAY!

Fleming Feted On 20th Year As Riggs Head

By S. Oliver Goodman

Robert V. Fleming was the guest of honor at a dinner last night given by directors of the Riggs National Bank on his twentieth anniversary as president of Washington's largest bank.

Officers of the bank and a few close friends joined in paying tribute to Mr. Fleming at the Burning Tree Golf Club. Dr. William McClellan acted as toastmaster and Floyd B. Wilson, chairman of the dinner committee, presented Mr. Fleming on behalf of the directors with a silver loving cup made in London in 1796 by R. Salmon.

When Mr. Fleming became Riggs president on November 9, 1925, the bank had deposits of about 36 million dollars, compared with the current total of roundly 300 million dollars. Well known nationally, he is a former president of the American Bankers Association and currently is chairman of the ABA Committee on Treasury War Borrowing. He is active in numerous civic activities.

Fiduciaries Hear Shattuck

More than 110 bank fiduciaries and their guests heard Mayo A. Shattuck, Boston attorney, explain the 'Prudent Man Rule' at a dinner meeting last night in the Mayflower Hotel. He clarified certain aspects of the legislation, which is now before Congress for enactment into law for the District of Columbia.

The legislation, backed by the District Bankers Association and the local bar association, would permit estate trustees to exercise more of their discretion in investing trust funds so as to secure the greatest possible return for beneficiaries. At present such trustees are limited in this city to the so-called 'legal list' standard for investments.

Week's Sales Gain 8 Per Cent

Washington department store sales in the week ended November 3 showed a gain of 8 per cent over the like 1944 week, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday. Volume here in the four weeks ended the same date was 11 per cent over the like 1944 period.

The Fifth Reserve District as a whole displayed an increase of 6 per cent for the week and an upturn of 9 per cent for the four-week period.

Proper Capital Ratio Stressed

More than 100 bankers met this week at the Prince Georges Country Club at Landover, Md., for the semiannual session of Group 4 of the Maryland Bankers Association. Robert Sherwood of Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co. presided over the conerence, which was addressed by Col. E. W. Thomson and Col. Vance L. Sailor. The latter, chief examiner of the FDIC, spoke informally on the necessity for retaining a proper ratio of capital to deposits.

Airline Changes Name

The official name of American Export Airlines, Inc., will be changed to American Overseas Airlines, Inc., effective today, according to Harold R. Harris, vice president and general manager of the airline which is the overseas operating division of the American Airlines System.
